RUSSIAN TROOPS WILL TAKE OVER LATVIA, ESTONIA

Red Soldiers Pour Into Lithuania

MOSCOW, June 16 (AP).—Soviet Russia tonight announced that Estonia and Latvia had agreed to allow soviet troops free passage into their territory, and to form new governments which would "insure honest implementation" of Russia's mutual assistance pacts with the two countries.

The announcement was released by Tass, official news agency, as the Red army, with tanks and planes, was reported in dispatches from abroad to be pouring into Lithuania, a third Baltic country with which Russia has a mutual assistance pact. Entry of soviet troops into Lithuania also followed that country's agreement to Russia's demands. According to reports, one of which estimated the Red force at 500,000 men, these troops were sent to garrison the Lithuanian-German border.

[The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported last night that Russian troop concentrations already had been extended to Latvia and Estonia. The Estonian news agency said the Estonian government had resigned.]

Notes Handed to Envoys.

Russia announced it had demanded the right to station troops at the most important centers in Latvia and Estonia and in sufficient strength to assure carrying out of the mutual assistance pacts.

The demands were contained in notes handed to the Latvian and Estonian ministers. In the notes Russia accused Latvia not only of failing to cancel a military alliance with Estonia, but also of attempting to extend it by including Lithuania and Finland. It charged the alliance was a "rude violation" of the terms of the assistance pacts.

Russia negotiated these pacts with the three small Baltic states of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania last fall immediately after sharing with Germany the division of Poland.

Finland Refused Pact.

By the treaties, Russia obtained the right to establish naval and air bases and garrisons of limited size in the three countries. Moscow's action at the time was interpreted abroad as an attempt to establish outposts against Germany.

When Russia attempted to negotiate a similar pact with Finland, that country refused and fought.

London and Stockholm dispatches, received in Moscow, said Adolf Hitler's aggression in France may have caused soviet Russia to seek to strengthen its position in the Baltic. An official soviet announcement, however, discouraged any speculation that Russia is turning away from coöperation with Germany.

[According to London dispatches received by THE TRIBUNE, British officials, while refraining from comment, took the view that Russia would not take any action of which Germany did not approve. Officials, therefore, were disinclined to interpret the Russian steps as influencing Britain's war against Germany.]

Russia announced it had been informed by the German embassy that "Ex-President" Antanas Smetona of Lithuania and several other Lithuanian government officials had been interned in Germany.

Viewed as Move to War.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 16 (AP).—The soviet Russian move into Lithuania was interpreted in Kaunas, the Lithuanian capital, as the first step toward soviet participation in the European war. Further "alterations" in the status of Baltic states will be made shortly, according to reports published here tonight.

Whatever the intent of Russia, it has introduced itself once more as the surprise factor in the European tangle. Lithuania was said by the newspaper Aftonbladet's correspondent to have become since yesterday a "giant Russian military camp with enormous troop formations, tanks, and armored cars steadily streaming over the border."

"The border is open," he added, "and Russia can send as many soldiers as it wants. It seems to be at least a half million men."

War Influence Felt as G. O. P. Chiefs Gather

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—With the European war influencing both its platform declarations and its nomination of a candidate for President, the Republican national convention will meet at Philadelphia a week from tomorrow.

The framing of the platform, which may precipitate a major battle in the convention, will begin at once. The members designate of the resolutions committee will come together unofficially for that purpose tomorrow in Philadelphia in order to be able to devote more time and thought to the party's declaration of principles than would be afforded after the convention assembles.

After organization and preliminary deliberation, the committee will hold open hearings next Wednesday and Thursday at which groups and individuals will appear to submit arguments for and against the planks that will make up the platform.

Battle Over War Stand.

A hot fight is expected over the plank setting forth the party's position on the relation of the United States to the war. The struggle will be between the Republican internationalists, who subscribe to the policy of American intervention in Europe, and the Republican nationalists, who take their stand on the Monroe Doctrine declaring equally against American interference in European affairs and European intervention in the Americas.

Indications are, however, that the Republican declaration will be profoundly influenced by events of the last week. The incendiary utterances of President Roosevelt, culminating in his Charlottesville speech last Monday, have given the Republicans their cue.

Turn Guns on "War Party."

The trend now is clearly toward a platform plank assailing the Democratic party as the war party, which will be more than likely to get the country into the war in Europe or the war in Asia, or both, if returned to power; and to present the G. O. P. to the country as the peace party, which may be trusted to keep the country out of war, if charged with authority for the next four years.

Significant of the trend is the plat-

Col. McCormick Warns Nation

Cold facts were marshaled by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, last night against the "people who are shouting to send other people to war."

In an address delivered over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour, Col. McCormick matched realities against hysteria.

Text of Address.

Following is the text of Col. McCormick's address:

"Last week at this hour I counseled calm in a troubled world. Now, in face of the appalling catastrophe to the republic of France, I urge you to turn a keen, determined face into the instant need of the moment.

"France is prostrate because Leon Blum sent her best arms to the communists in Spain and because the communists sat down in her arms-making factories.

"Hysteria or blind devotion to other countries would involve us in this catastrophe without taking any step to protect ourselves.

Army's Condition Cited.

"We have practically no army. This is not the fault of the army. Seventeen years ago it adopted the principle of mechanization, as I know because I had an active part in the decision.

"It led the world in at least one form of military aviation—the long range bomber which, if provided in sufficient numbers, will protect us from invasion. But appropriations were lacking. The money which might have furnished employment and armament was spent on other projects than self-defense. The national debt was raised from 21 to 43 billion dollars, while the army was neglected.

"Confronting armies of millions and weapons in the tens of thousands, we have only four field guns capable of waging modern war, 38,000 semiautomatic rifles (and no one knows if they are the right kind), 183 first class infantry mortars, no modern combat airplanes, two pontoon bridges, no first class anti-aircraft guns, no first class tanks, no railway artillery, no flame throwers, no parachute troop equipment.

Arms Needed for Protection.

"As far as war in Europe is concerned, our arms are only usable for training purposes, for our available field force of 70,000 men. Moreover, they are needed to protect the country from invasion by Mexico.

"In 1916 the entire National Guard was called out to prevent an invasion which had been ordered by President Carranza. It was necessary in 1917 and 1918 to maintain a large army along the Mexican border.

"Mexico is hostile to the United States for historical reasons and is dominated by the Russian communists. If we should be threatened from abroad, Mexico would be sure to strike. Our equipment fortunately is suitable for campaigns in Texas and New Mexico.

"Congress has just adopted a plan to create nine regular army divisions, and a second line of 18 National Guard divisions—with necessary corps—and army auxiliaries.

Machinery Needed First.

"It has planned to procure about 13,000 cannon, tanks, antiaircraft artillery, and other equipment to equip these troops . . . for which the machinery to manufacture them must first be made.

"The divisions will need 240,000 rifles. At least 5,000 new airplanes are to be provided, but the method of procuring them has not been determined.

"These are weapons for arming the first line troops. There is no provision for reënforcements or for replacement of losses.

"At the present rate of progress it will take from four to five years to manufacture all this. It can be manufactured much faster, of course, if turned over to experienced industrialists and if military men are set free for military duty.

Troop Training Required.

"When the troops have been raised and the arms have been manufactured the men must learn how to use them. Our generals and staffs have had no practice in the last 20 years. By study of the war in Europe, by war games and maneuvers, they must learn how to handle our troops.

"When all of this has been accomplished, we will have an army of 450,000 men—just enough to protect our own soil from invasion and without affording any surplus for export.

"The nation should embark upon this program at once and devote itself calmly and vigorously in preparing these defenses. The people who are shouting to send other people to war should save their breath.

Calls for End to Hysteria.

"The navy should stop wearing out its engines in the far Pacific and come back to the Atlantic coast, where it can safeguard our country while we make the preparations for defense that have been so dangerously neglected; as they were so tragically neglected in France.

"In this serious situation, hysteria must cease. Americans, whatever their origin, must be Americans. However much they love any other country, their duty is to their own country.

"However much they may sympathize with friends in dire trouble, they must not wildly sacrifice their brothers and their sons."

WITH U. S. HELP WE'LL WIN FIGHT, CRY OF BRITISH

Believe Roosevelt Will Rescue Them.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 17, Monday.—Great Britain is making 11th hour efforts to prevent the complete collapse of France and to organize a new war front. These efforts include:

1. An official pronouncement that no matter what happens to France Great Britain is continuing the war "to the bitter end' and victory no matter what the cost."

2. Repeated denials of rumors that the French government is considering a separate peace with Germany. The rumors were characterized as "baseless and malicious," and German propaganda.

Count on Roosevelt.

3. The intimation that President Roosevelt still will be able to come to the rescue. Hope of this is expressed both in government circles and newspaper headlines, which use such words as "Roosevelt's vow," "pledge," and "promise." The implications in the headlines are sufficient to justify the belief of many Britons that Uncle Sam is coming in on condition that "France continues resistance."

To combat the rumors that France might capitulate and Britain give up the fight, the government issued a formal statement. The most significant paragraphs from it follow:

"It cannot be too clearly stated that Great Britain is firmly and resolutely determined to continue the struggle until victory has been won. Even if France's resistance on land were seriously weakened, she still has the most powerful navy in Europe, after the British navy, and this great allied fleet is fully capable of enforcing the blockade, which has become even more effective as a result of Italy's entry into the war.

Calls Nazis "Reckless."

"Germany has used up her resources on a reckless scale, and tho even these resources may not yet be exhausted, unless she can defeat the British empire and its allies within the next few months her chance of defeating them at all will have vanished.

"The tremendous resources of the British and French empires together with those which the United States has placed at the disposal of the allies will play a weightier part with each week that passes, and as week succeeds week, the manpower of Britain takes its place in the struggle with ever increasing momentum.

"We are prepared to continue the war just so long as it may be necessary to secure the downfall of our opponent, even tho it may take years to accomplish the task."

Churchill to Speak.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill will make a speech of utmost importance in the house of commons either today or tomorrow. Newspapers declared that "all the facts he will tell won't be pleasant, as the war is coming closer to England daily." Churchill, reports from Bordeaux indicated, may have been in France yesterday conferring with government leaders there.

The fall of the Paul Reynaud cabinet in France shocked the British, but newspapers early this morning refused to weaken in their faith that France is not contemplating a separate peace. Churchill, it was reported, will inform commons that the new French government is standing firm with Britain in its determination to continue the war.

Attitude of America.

An editorial in the Daily Telegraph, as did virtually all others in this morning's newspapers, repeated the vital importance of France's hanging on owing to the fact that President Roosevelt's "pledges" of aid depend upon continuance of resistance.

All morning newspapers gave a summary of American opinion, which they said showed "striking unanimity" for further support for the allies.

Isolation was declared to be plainly a dwindling, dying faith in America. The suggestion was made that the Republicans will make "full aid to the allies" a plank in their platform so that President Roosevelt's plans for this will not be hindered even if the Democrats lose the election.

STRIVE TO TRAP TROOPS FLEEING MAGINOT LINE

BULLETINS.

BERLIN, June 17, Monday (AP).—Aerial opposition to the German onslaught in France has almost ceased, German sources said today, indicating that "the French air force already has been struck a decisive blow."

BASEL, June 17, Monday (AP).—German mechanized units, smashing into eastern France, were reported today to have reached the famous wine center of Dole in northern Burgundy, only 50 air miles from the Swiss border.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 16.—Hard hitting German forces tonight were completing the encirclement of the Maginot line from the rear and were blocking the last lines of retreat of any of the 500,000 French troops which may have been caught within another German trap like that in Flanders.

[Reports reaching Basel, Switzerland, said the Maginot line was virtually abandoned by the French and its troops secretly withdrawn to bolster a new French line west of the French Jura mountains.]

With great force and speed a German wedge was driven between the Maginot line and Gen. Maxime Weygand's forces lined up behind the Loire line or trying to reach that line.

Reach River Saone.

The head of the German motorized column crossed the plateau of Langres and reached Gray on the River Saone, northeast of the French fortress of Dijon. Seeking to close the jaws of the trap, another German force which crossed the Rhine and filtered thru the Maginot fortifications reached Vesoul. Gray and Vesoul are about 30 miles apart. [The French admitted some German units had crossed the Saone above Gray.]

The Germans now are employing their customary strategy of cutting up the big Maginot pocket into a number of smaller pockets. In the north the Germans seized the fortifications of Longuyon, south of Longwy, and reported they now hold all the forts of Verdun.

In the Longuyon region lie France's richest iron ore deposits, the Briey basin.

German forces from Saarbruecken advancing thru the Maginot line between Saaralben and St. Avold appear to be headed for Nancy and Luneville.

Belfort Flanked.

On the south the German forces which crossed the Rhine "on a broad front" at Neuf Breisach took Colmar and went on to flank Belfort on the north. They threaten the Belfort forts from the rear. Belfort's task is to block the passage from the "Burgundy gate" thru the "Belfort gap" to Limoges.

Advancing toward the Loire in central France, German columns were said to be "competing with each other in pursuit of the exhausted enemy."

Southwest of Paris the French forces were said to be "hardpressed" by the pursuing Germans. [In this region—at Laigle and Le Ferte Vidame—the French said the Germans were held and French troops launched local counterattacks.]

Push Southeast of Paris.

"Southeast of Paris and on the upper Marne, strong tank and motorized divisions are in an unceasing drive toward the south," the high command said.

[The French admitted the Germans had crossed the Seine river in the neighborhood of Melun and Fontainebleau and farther east advanced elements had pushed past Auxerre in the direction of Clamecy and Avalon.]

German Stuka [dive bombers] and pursuit planes concentrated their attacks on the French rear communications in middle and southwest France, upsetting the French defense measures along the Loire and blazing a trail for the German forces advancing in the coastal area.

Famed Roman Colosseum Will Be Air Raid Shelter

ROME, June 16 (AP).—Italian authorities, accelerating antiwar raid precautions, announced that the Colosseum and other Roman monuments are being adapted to civilian use as bomb shelters. Workmen began piling sandbags in openings between the Colosseum arches, beneath which will be provided a refuge for several thousand persons.

2 MILLION NAZIS DRIVE DEEPER INTO COUNTRY

Pour Southward in Lightning Drive.

BULLETIN.
BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BORDEAUX, France, June 16.—The European world today lived thru the most shaking events (here 2 words censored). Momentous decisions therefore are expected to be issued hourly. English journalists and others have been ordered to stand by in readiness for evacuation from France. Will there be a big battle staged on the line of the Loire or are other startling events about to happen? Newspapers here deny categorically that any demand for an armistice has been made. The next few days, perhaps the next few hours, will indicate what is to be Europe's fate.

BORDEAUX, France, June 16 (AP).—France, in the deadliest of peril of her very life as a nation, chose 84 year old Marshal Henri Philippe Petain as premier tonight.

The Paul Reynaud government is gone, fallen in the face of the awesome decision which must soon be made, whether France can longer resist on her own soil the pellmell legions of Nazi Germany.

Those legions passed farther and farther toward the south of France tonight, with more than 2,000,000 men thrusting across the countryside, virtually from the sea to the Swiss border.

[Basel, Switzerland, reported that France had abandoned the mighty Maginot line, except for a few gunners, electing to use those 500,000 or more men in the open instead of in the winding recesses of that outflanked system of fortifications.]

Message from Roosevelt.

The fall of the Reynaud cabinet, after an almost continual series of conferences which lasted late into the night, followed discussion of an apparently urgent message from Britain's prime minister, Winston Churchill. That Churchill himself might be in France was indicated.

Reynaud was said to have escaped narrowly a German bombing raid on an unidentified town as he traveled to interview Churchill in an interim between the French cabinet sessions. Whether Reynaud and Churchill met was not disclosed.

The nature of Churchill's message was secret, but it was portrayed as of the greatest importance.

Whether France will decide to yield her soil to the invader, for the time being, perhaps to continue the struggle from elsewhere, apparently hinged on the Churchill message and on the cabinet's long and weighty discussion of President Roosevelt's offer of material aid from the United States, short of American military participation.

Sees British Envoy.

Just before turning the government over to the aged Petain, Reynaud did confer with British Ambassador Sir Ronald Campbell and Brig. Gen. Edward Louis Spears, a member of the British parliament. The interview with Spears was described as extremely important for the future coöperation of the allies.

It is recalled that Spears recently bore to Reynaud a proposal by a group of French deputies and British members of parliament that parliament and the French legislative body unite in a joint session.

Petain chose former Premier Camille Chautemps as vice premier and designated Generalissimo Maxime Weygand minister of national defense.

Weygand, who was called to head the French armies after the first German break thru near Sedan in May, presumably will remain a director of the armed forces.

The Cabinet Lineup.

Marshal Petain filled the other more important posts in the cabinet with the following men: Minister of war, Gen. Louis Colson, chief of the army general staff; minister of navy, Admiral Jean Darlan; minister of air, Gen. Bertrand Pigo, former head of air force; foreign minister, Paul Baudoin; minister of interior, Charles Pomaret; minister of finance, Marcel Bouthillier, retained, same position under Reynaud; minister of colonies, Albert Riviere, minister of pensions in the Reynaud and Blum cabinets; minister of public works, Louis Oscar Frossard, retained, same position under Reynaud.

Former Premiers Pierre Laval, Georges Bonnet, and Pierre Flandin, mentioned at first as cabinet choices, did not accept posts in the new lineup.

Reynaud, who became premier in a sudden overthrow of Edouard Daladier, took over the French government on March 21, as the war was emerging from its winter stalemate. In successive broadcasts he had been forced to announce to the French people some of their greatest reverses in their history, including the fateful Norwegian campaign, the defeat at Sedan, the capitulation of King Leopold of Belgium, and the abandonment of Paris to the Germans. He was a prime mover in agitating for an active war.

A communique, issued after a brief morning session of the cabinet as it stood under Reynaud, said the United States government "declares itself resolved to develop assistance to the full extent of its resources to the exclusion, for the moment, it is understood, of any declaration of war against Germany."

Decision Up to Congress.

"It is, in effect," the communique added, "for congress to take any such decision under the terms of the American constitution."

Thus, the communique went on, it was necessary for the cabinet to discuss further, "in the light of information in its possession on the whole diplomatic and military situation, to what extent this reply of the American government is such as to permit France to continue the struggle on its own territory under conditions which can usefully serve the common cause of the democracies."

[President Roosevelt said the United States would "redouble its efforts" to give the allies help as long as they can resist the Germans, but stated clearly that his answer carried "no implication of military commitments." The French radio broadcast a denial, according to CBS, that Havas, the French news agency, had announced conditions for an armistice were being asked of Germany.]

Situation "Most Grave."

The war ministry spokesman said the military situation was "most grave," and the nightly communique substantiated him. It disclosed the Germans had pushed south of the plateau of Langres into the region north of Dijon and the Saone above Gray. It said Nazi advanced elements had passed Auxerre, deep in central France, and were heading toward Clamency and Avalon, about 20 miles farther south.

It reported French movements "in accordance with orders" [apparently a retreat] in Alsace and Lorraine. Indicative of the great depth of German penetration, at least by advance units, Dijon is 175 miles southeast of Paris, it and Gray being near the Swiss border; and Auxerre is 100 miles from Paris in a more southerly direction.

The high command's communique said the Nazis were throwing fresh reserves into the battle and making violent attacks over the Langres plateau, which extends thru the Cote d'Or, north from Dijon toward Chaumont, where Gen. John J. Pershing had his headquarters during the world war.

The military spokesman said there were no important developments on the west flank between Evreux and Chartres, south of the Seine, apparently where a new line has been established. This was not because of French resistance, he said, but because the Germans had weakened their lines there by leaving units behind in Paris.

Enormous Losses.

The spokesman said the Germans had suffered enormous losses and a complete failure in attempting to break the Maginot line in a frontal attack in the Saar sector two days ago, and had accomplished relatively little, only succeeding in getting a few small units across the river, when they made another attack along the Rhine.

It was acknowledged that the Germans were making an effort to drive from the bridgehead thus established on the Rhine, to connect with their fast columns driving toward Gray.

The French radio said the German attack in Champagne was powerful and had broken thru the French positions at Chateau-Thierry and on Montagne de Rheims.

ELDER MILITARY MEN DOMINATE FRENCH CABINET

Petain, Weygand, and Darlan in Key Jobs.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Political complexion of the new French cabinet remains somewhat obscure, but it apparently is to be run by that elderly group of professional military men to whom France has turned more and more as her peril from Germany increased.

Premier Petain's record is well known. He has been one of France's stanchest defenders and has had vast experience in war, government, and diplomatic activities.

Defense Minister Gen. Maxime Weygand is another old soldier, called from the near east after the first German successes against France.

Heads French Army.

Gen. Louis Colson, a third French warrior, is minister of war; and Admiral Jean Darlan, a naval counterpart of these old soldiers, heads the newly combined ministry of navy and merchant marine.

Foreign Minister Paul Baudoin was secretary of the administrative staff of the economic warfare committee in the earlier days of the war, and 10 days ago was chosen assistant foreign minister when Paul Reynaud reorganized the cabinet. He is president of the Bank of Indo-China.

Charles Pomaret, shifting from the labor to the interior ministry, is a member of the Socialist and Republican Union party, as is Louis Oscar Frossard, retained as minister of public works.

Aid to Reynaud.

Marcel Bouthillier, retained as finance minister, was long the right-hand man of Reynaud when Reynaud was in the finance ministry. He is a technician rather than a politician.

Colonial Minister Albert Riviere is a Socialist.

Political attitudes of the other members were not at once clear.

3,000 MILE OCEAN WON'T SAVE YOU, PAPER TELLS U. S.

LONDON, June 16 (AP).—Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express—advising Americans editorially, "learn by our folly" and "don't be English!"—admonished the United States today not to believe "that 3,000 miles of Atlantic can save you."

The editorial mouthpiece of Britain's minister for aircraft production called upon American to ignore "soft words of reassurance that come from Germany."

"We do not give advice in order to influence American military intervention in the war," the Express said. "Congress will decide that question.

"Yet America should learn by our own experiences. Her citizens have reached the state that we in Europe were at the time of Munich when we were racked with anxiety. Afterwards we breathed a sigh of relief and sank gently into a complacency that now astounds and humiliates us.

"So we slid into war. Now we are suffering the most stupendous reverses."

HEADHUNTERS KILL 3 WOMEN IN PHILIPPINE RAID

MANILA, P. I., June 17 [Monday] (AP).—Ilongot tribesmen took the warpath again today and killed three women and wounded a man in a village in the wild Cordillera mountains. Philippine constabulary officers asked for reinforcements to hunt the slayers. Investigators said they believed the head hunting foray was in revenge for the conviction of 21 Ilongot and Abilao tribesmen of murder charges last week. Ilongot custom decrees, officials said, that Christian heads must roll to compensate for the death or disgrace of a tribesman.

LONDON, June 15.—While leaders of the allied governments were proclaiming that they would fight on, they neglected to tell what they would fight with.

A fortnight ago the allied governments explained their defeat in Flanders by pointing to the preponderance of German equipment, such as tanks and planes, and claimed that the allies would begin to win when they caught up with the German quantities of these weapons.

Gen. Maxime Weygand was called upon to set up a new defense line without fortifications and with a shortage of arms and mechanized equipment, because the losses of equipment rushed into Belgium in mid-May meant that Weygand could have had little with which to arm his troops strung out along the Aisne-Somme line.

More Equipment Lost.

The Germans have since advanced southward and are still going. This could only mean that the equipment used by the French armies against the Germans as they pushed south of the Seine and Marne river and overran the Maginot line would fall into the hands of the Germans.

This would happen because of the slowness of movement of the French armies and the rapidity of the German thrusts which drove thru the French zones of defense, widening out behind and isolating troops in those areas. In some cases parties of these French troops fought their way out before the enemy could build up strength behind them.

Losses to the French consisted not only of equipment left behind by the retiring armies, but, worse still, some of the most important industrial plants engaged in the production of military equipment. This meant that the French forces could hope for less and less replacements as the enemy continued seizing their factories.

Loire a Rugged Valley.

Weygand was faced with the problem of setting up another line that would have the prospect of holding up the Germans. Without the necessary time to erect elaborate works of defense the line that offered the best natural barrier was the Loire valley, where the rugged nature of the country and the steep banks of the river provide obstacles. The southern bank also offers cover from planes and artillery fire.

This meant giving up miles of terrain, but it appeared better to make a stand on the Loire than attempt to hold a line somewhere farther north and eventually be driven back to the Loire after suffering useless losses.

It became a matter of urgency for the allies to decide whether they would risk going down together in one more big battle in France or whether England should preserve itself in the hope of finally fighting on to victory that would rescue France and their allies at some later time.

Few Ports Usable.

The decision became an urgent necessity because in withdrawing to the Loire, the allies faced the necessity of giving up naval bases at Cherbourg, Brest, and Lorient and there remain only a few other ports on the Atlantic for debarking and embarking troops and heavy equipment.

Germany's air power might be able to prevent their use of these shipping bases and in that case the British would not be able to withdraw their army and remaining equipment from France.

Seizure of the French coast as far south as the mouth of the Loire would place Hitler in a position to begin his offensive against England.

When that attack comes England desperately will need every trained man and every gun and machinegun and every piece of fighting gear she can muster if she hopes to be successful in defending herself. There still are some 3,000,000 men in Britain between 24 and 35 years who have not yet been called for service altho they come under the compulsory service act.

Old Theories Wrecked.

Various British governments and military authorities in the past saw this war as being one like the last that would last for years during which Britain, behind the British fleet and the French army, could organize home industrial equipment and build up new armies which would take the field in due course and finally crush Germany.

Hitler, by his successful blitzkriegs, has wrecked these ideas and today England is placed in the position of having to produce arms and equipment over night—by next week or next month at the latest.

The Tribune correspondent has searched for possible reasons to account for the judgments made by the leaders of the vast British empire—embracing one-quarter of the world—which caused them to embark on a war before being properly informed about the enemy or armed themselves.

Relied on Economic Blockade.

The answer appears to be that they relied upon the policy of clapping down an economic blockade, calculating on preventing Germany from selling goods and obtaining foreign exchange to purchase certain raw materials without which Great Britain's advisers were convinced Germany could not hold out against them.

Such raw materials consisted of many different goods but inquiry shows that the policy makers who laid down the blockade plan were themselves relying upon lists compiled during the years of the last war and were and are unaware today of just what materials Germany can produce by chemical processes from raw materials such as coal and woodpulp, abundant supplies of which are available either from Germany, occupied territories, or neutrals.

An illustration of erroneous estimates was in the reckoning of one of the essentials—oil—both lubricating and gasoline. Experts, American as well as European, had estimated Germany had just so much oil and no more. The tonnage used by Germany's air and land forces during the past two and one-half months exceeded these maximum estimates and still Germany's air, land and sea forces are carrying on as if there still were plenty of supplies in reserve.

Can't Tell Resources.

The truth is that no intelligence service in the world today can tell, with facts to back up their estimates, how much oil was produced inside German territory either from oil wells, from coal mines, or imported from Rumania, Russia or other sources.

They are unable to tell correctly how much oil was stored in the reich when the war started, the present German supplies or imports or production of iron ore, her supplies and stores of special metals or even for what purposes special metals are needed.

ROME, June 16.—Msgr. Carlo Margiotti, archbishop of Gorizia, has issued a pastoral letter, the Italian press stated today, urging the Italian people and the clergy to obey and trust Premier Benito Mussolini in the war he is waging for the "welfare of the Italian people." The letter has not appeared in the Osservatore Romano, the Vatican official newspaper. The Italians, Msgr. Margiotti was said to have added, "can no longer be kept within the unjust frontiers of the peninsula, and are seeking on their sea the outlet and the way for the goal assigned to them by Providence."

BERLIN, June 17 Monday (AP).—Reconstruction of the French government occasioned no official comment in Berlin today, but the informal opinion was expressed that it is "a manifestation of France's desperate situation." "One government or another in France does not make any difference at this stage," it was asserted. "Our job remains to destroy the enemy's military force."

MAGINOT FORTS GIVEN UP; SHIFT 500,000 TROOPS

Germans Find Only a Few Rearguard Units.

BASEL, Switzerland, June 16 (AP).—France's mighty Maginot line, long the symbol of security against an invader from the east, lay virtually abandoned tonight, most of its half million defenders withdrawn secretly in a new attempt to halt the armies of Adolf Hitler.

Along the whole line, according to fortress soldiers—"shellfish," they call themselves—who had fretted for weeks while their comrades tried to stem the Nazi advance farther west, had left in such great numbers that German legions, penerating the line, found it almost empty.

Only handfuls of men were reported left behind to man artillery and machine guns to harass the invaders and cover the great retirement of their own troops.

Now Take an Open Stand.

From the distant reaches of the winding Moselle in northern Lorraine to the Swiss border at Basel, the French had moved west and southwest from the now virtually useless steel and concrete fortifications to make an open stand with the army of Gen. Maxime Weygand on a line west from the French Jura mountains.

The Maginot line already had been outflanked in the east and the swift German drive today would have been disastrous to the defenders. Weygand, according to observers here, knew that and saved his men and at the same time strengthened his own army by the withdrawal.

Motorized columns of Germans, speeding down behind the fortified zone, were reported to have radioed back that the fortresses were almost bare of men, save for the few men of the rearguard action.

Now Virtually Desolate.

Where military life had teemed only hours ago as the Germans swept into Verdun in the north, and crossed the Rhine yesterday at Neuf Breisach, 40 miles north of Basel, it was now virtually desolate.

At that point 20 fresh German divisions, including at least one and possible more motorized panzer [armored] divisions, were reported to have poured over pontoon bridges during a heavy river fog, and moved in a great rumbling mass, protected by squadrons of bombers, into the Vosges mountains.

These divisions were reported at the outskirts of Vesoul, about 32 miles west of Belfort and almost midway between Belfort and Langres.

Find a Single Gun Crew.

The French withdrawal was so swift that when the Germans took Colmar after the Neuf Breisach crossing they found a single gun crew of 12 men occupying space which swarmed with thousands of troops only a short time ago, reports reaching here said.

That crossing of the Rhine, which had been considered as a suicidal act until it was actually accomplished, was said to have decided Gen. Weygand on withdrawal. It was a hazardous undertaking considering the swiftness of the German advance and the obvious efforts they would make to cut off retreat.

With most of 40 French divisions out of the $500,000,000 fortifications Weygand could count on strengthening the defense of France below Paris on his new line.

Short of Pontoon Sections.

As the retiring army moved south it dynamited strategic bridges to delay the mass of German troops. Since the major German successes in the campaign in western France, the Nazis were said to be short of prepared pontoon sections which usually accompany the motorized legions and which were largely responsible for the rapid progress made in crossing northern rivers.

This method of retarding the enemy also gave Weygand time to place his new forces in line. That line, according to reports reaching Basel, would extend from the southern side of the Burgundian gate, the historic gap of Belfort and ancient road of invaders from the northeast, to the rugged wooded mountains and plateau of Langres and farther west, to lower ground at Troyes on the Seine.

Somewhere southeast of Paris this line would link up with the Loire valley defense line running westward to the sea.

The French already had dynamited bridges between Switzerland and Alsace, including the Delle railroad and highway bridge, in an attempt to halt Nazi forces which crossed the Rhine at Neuf Breisach.

TELLS OF SINGING BRITISH FIGHTING WITH BAYONETS

Final Stand in Glare of Burning Town.

[The following is an eyewitness account of the battle at St. Valery-en-Caux, where the Germans last week cut off a body of allied troops and claimed the capture of 38,000, including six generals. The British admitted the loss of 6,000 as prisoners.]

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, June 16 (AP).—The French officer who told the story had a leg wound. It was painful. One could tell that by his sunken eyes and his gaunt face, which sometimes twitched as he spoke.

He had been at St. Valery-en-Caux on the channel coast, and now he was far away and remembering the last stand of a British regiment fighting with bayonets behind barricades in the glare of the burning town.

Laugh and Sing as They Fight.

There had been a British sergeant who sang and laughed as he fought, and his men laughed. Something in this strange British attitude appealed to the French officer.

The Frenchman, as liaison officer attached to headquarters, had seen the whole fight, had seen the men retired to the coast, fighting valiantly.

"British and French troops were there," he said, "and the generals had a conference.

"The next day I was asked to pass certain instructions to the French artillery. The town's streets were so packed with cars and people that I had to break thru doors and pass thru houses to reach my destination.

Fight Begins Suddenly.

"I was coming back when a German plane circled over the town three times making observations. Then it all happened suddenly.

"Heavy shelling started. We helped to free some mules from their harness. A shell hit a house near me and I was wounded in the leg. I had it bandaged and went on. An hour later there was heavy bombing. Parts of the town began burning."

The officer winced and then continued:

"Then came a surprise. I heard heavy machine gun fire, and British soldiers started rushing up the street with fixed bayonets. The Germans, it seemed, were coming into the town.

"Soon there was a terrific battle going on among the blazing buildings—machine gunning and shellfire. The Germans were on the cliff on the west side of the harbor. I joined some Englishmen on the east side of the harbor entrance, firing at the Germans only a few hundred yards away. After a while things suddenly quieted. The Germans seemed to have been driven back from the east cliff.

Battle in Fiery Night.

"When night fell the battle began all over again. The British truly were magnificent. They set up barricades. The enemy sent over shells and his machine guns set up a steady rat-a-tat-tat. It was then I saw the sergeant making his men laugh, leading them in songs as they took over against the shelling in the light of the flaming houses. The moment there was a lull they were back at the barricades."

Under heavy machine gun fire the next morning the British soldiers made for the beach. The nearest boats were at Veules-Les-Roses, some miles away. Dead and wounded were beginning to strew the beach. The French officer and others hid in crannies under the cliff.

The British were supremely cool, said the officer. He saw a whole platoon walking down the beach in a widely spaced line instead of single file, "just as if they were on parade." Some reached the boats; others did not.

The French officer stripped off his clothes and swam to a boat, which carried him to a trawler.

MAGINOT LINE FORTS A SIX YEAR, ½ BILLION DOLLAR WAR PROJECT

"The greatest system of fortifications of all time"—that was what military experts once called France's Maginot line. Now it appears to be just so much steel and concrete, valueless to France.

Extending about 200 miles along the French-German frontier from Belgium to Switzerland, the line cost about $500,000,000 and afforded "all the comforts of home" to the hundreds of thousands of troops assigned to it.

In 1930 the late Andre Maginot, then France's minister of war, pushed thru the first credits for the project which was to bear his name. The main construction was completed about six years later, altho minor work was going on almost continuously up to the start of the war.

In reality the line was an area in which ploughed fields or waving grain concealed the defense system. Its width varied and once was a military secret. Within that area were formidable weapons, housed deep underground around or inside vast air conditioned fortresses. Miles of tunnels, large storerooms for munitions, barracks, hospitals, power stations, lecture halls, gymnasiums, underground airplane hangars and even reading rooms made the "line" a veritable city as well as combination of forts.

BRITISH EXPERTS FIND 8 CAUSES FOR NAZIS' GAINS

Admit Power of New German Tactics.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 16.—Failure of the allies to make any effective resistance against the new scientific warfare of Germany is due, in the opinion of experts here, to numerous factors.

First of these is the original underestimation of the audacity, morale, efficiency, organization, and resources of the enemy.

The second is the efficient use to which the Germans put their equipment, altho there is nothing particularly new about it.

The third is the ability of the Germans to move large bodies of men with a speed heretofore believed impossible.

Fourth is the excellent coördination of all units, many of which depend upon individual initiative.

New Tactics Devised.

The fifth is new tactics which provide maximum support of artillery, airplanes, and tanks and depend on the full use of radio communication of all arms with the infantry.

Sixth is the knowledge of the enemy's weakness, equipment, tactics, and strategy.

Seventh is the great superiority of the air force and the uses to which it can be put.

The eighth factor is the greatly increased power of destruction of shells and bombs, the multiplied firepower of all arms, and liquid fire from tanks, which made areas untenable by flesh and blood opposition.

It is clear that, despite the example of the Norwegian debacle, the allies underestimated the striking power of the German forces over the Albert canal in Belgium. Otherwise, they would have prepared a defense on the extension of the Maginot line instead of attempting to advance into Belgium to fight the enemy there.

Nazis' Equipment No Secret.

Almost all of the equipment used by the Germans, from flame throwers to parachutists, was known to the allies, but the use to which it could be put was not foreseen.

Altho the Germans were said from the beginning of the war to be moving troops at the rate of a million at a time in Germany, from the Baltic to the Siegfried line and back, no one seemed to realize how important such training and experience would be in making the army mobile.

Coördination of all units had been studied by the Nazis with the guidance of cameras, and so in every phase of attack and defense every man knew what he was supposed to do.

Coördination Reaches Far.

This coördination, beginning with the infantry, reached thru the tanks and artillery and even to airplane support. This permitted the use of new tactics in which, in any operation, commanders knew the difficulties encountered and could give by radio the orders needed to solve the problems.

It is understood the Germans had information regarding the strength of armor used on allied tanks and developed a gun to penetrate it. They were fully aware when they attacked Belgium of the moves the allies would make and had planned counter strokes.

Improvements in explosives were first demonstrated when a torpedo sank the supposedly torpedo-proof battleship Royal Oak in Scapa Flow.

Liquid flame throwers were said to have proved effective in making enemy areas, including pillboxes, untenable.

Human Capacity Measured.

On top of all this, the Germans were said to have worked the problem of human capacity down to a science whereby soldiers were not forced to fight beyond the period in which they showed maximum strength. After this, reserves took up the battle.

While the allies made many reconnaissance flights, the Germans were able to move tremendous numbers over long distances despite allied bombers. How this was done is not yet clear, altho eyewitness stories of British soldiers indicate that some system of camouflage was used, with the troops advancing under cover of darkness and possibly not over main routes.

Stories have been told of how allied tanks passed completely thru territory where German infantry was massed only to find themselves trapped.

New Camouflage Jackets.

Even in allied counterattacks, infantry suddenly faced withering fire from heavy forces in unexpected places. The difficulty of spotting the German infantry was said to be due to camouflage jackets which, when properly used, made the soldiers almost indistinguishable from the countryside even when an observer was not far away.

In underestimating German strength, military writers here have consistently erred as regards food and fuel resources. Even after the Flanders battle, newspapers seriously remarked that the German drive was bound to break down because of the scarcity of oil and gas for tanks, motorized equipment, and airplanes.

There has been no indication that this was true, and the fact that the royal air force within the last week announced the succesful bombing of oil tanks at Dunkirk suggests that, if a serious lack of fuel had existed, the Germans replenished their supplies in the march thru Belgium and Flanders.

Losses Believed Huge.

It is said that altho main stocks at various areas might have been destroyed, there were thousands of gas stations thruout northern France where gas must have been available.

It is reported here that the German losses have been enormous, but the continued tenacity of the German drive on both wings of the French army and on the Maginot line proves that, whatever they were, they were not sufficient even to cause a slackening of operations.

OFFICERS SEE HOW SMOKE AFFECTS HITS OF ARMY RIFLEMEN

New York, June 16 [Special].—An innovation in military tactics revealed by the German army—the damaging effect of smoke screens in reducing the number of hits from infantry rifle fire—was demonstrated here today for 350 officers of the first military gas school of Philadelphia.

A detail of enlisted men from the Edgewood arsenal, Maryland, firing the army's new semiautomatic Garand rifle demonstrated that a soldier under normal conditions will average about 51 per cent of hits. With smoke on his target it was shown that he averages only 12 per cent of hits. When the rifleman was enshrouded in smoke, his average dropped to less than 4 per cent. Targets were at 100 yards.

Another phase of the demonstration arranged for the officers was field identification of chemical warfare agents by a sniff test. Small quantities of gas were discharged at intervals by electric detonators and the officers marched thru clouds of mustard, phosgene and chloroacetophenone, or tear gas. As they sniffed the different odors the names of the gases were announced.

ITALIAN AIRMEN CLAIM 40 FRENCH PLANES WRECKED

Allied Submarine Also Is Destroyed.

BULLETIN.

New York, June 17, Monday (AP).—A broadcast on the wave length of the French radio station TPA 13 intercepted this morning by NBC said the entire industrial center of Turin, Italy, had been destroyed by French air raiders. There were no further details, except that anti-aircraft guns failed to function.

ROME, June 16 (AP).—Fascist Italy, engaged in its greatest venture in warring against France and Great Britain, proclaimed today that her land, air, and sea forces are battling with "ever more promising results."

Forty French planes, two British, and an allied submarine were destroyed, the day's communique announced. Four more planes were brought down in a raid at Genoa.

Action took place in the Mediterranean, in southern France, on the Alpine frontier, and in East Africa.

The French planes were reported destroyed in southern France, where a big munitions dump was blown up and several fires started.

Offer Sharp Opposition.

Some French planes, the communique said, gave "violent" opposition. The others were destroyed on the ground.

"Five of our planes have not returned to their bases," the communique added.

In the Mediterranean Italian torpedo boats engaged submarines and sank one. Allied air bases in Corsica and Malta were bombed.

The two British planes were brought down over Massaua [Eritrea] in the African theater of war. Allied air raids at Genoa last night were acknowledged, but the communique declared, "Four enemy planes were brought down by anti-aircraft batteries." The Genoa casualties consisted of one woman killed and eight persons injured.

United States Assailed.

Fascist circles were cynical about the French effort to obtain assistance from the United States. The newspaper Il Popolo di Roma said President Roosevelt's reply to Premier Reynaud's plea for aid was "typically American" because it urged France "to continue the war without assuming any responsibility in the not improbable case that France succumbs after useless, bloody resistance."

The possibility of civilian mobilization appeared imminent. Instructions were issued to Fascist provincial chiefs to assist the government in carrying out the program. Other developments:

Albania's parliament adopted a bill putting that Italian dependency into the war on the side of the Rome government, it was announced in a Rome radio broadcast.

Promote U-Boat Commander.

Lieut. Franco Pittoni, who commanded the submarine which sank the British antiaircraft cruiser Calypso, was promoted to captain.

Authoritative Fascists said soviet Russia's occupation of Lithuania was no concern of Italy's.

The repatriation of diplomats between Italy and the allies still moved slowly five days after Italy's declaration of war. Various technicalities and amenities apparently remain to be fulfilled altho the diplomatic corps members in all cases are said to be ready to return to their homes.

Malta Bombed Again.

VALETTA, Malta, June 16 (AP).—Air raiders bombed Malta, British Mediterranean base, again today. The results were not immediately determined. Thousands of Maltese, fearful of death from the air, are living in old railroad tunnels. They were there when the raiders appeared this morning and yesterday. One person was killed and eight wounded in the first of yesterday's two raids.

Ethiopians to Fight.

LONDON, June 16 (AP).—A Reuters [British news agency] dispatch from Jibuti tonight said four Ethiopian chiefs had arrived there with troops to coöperate with French forces in campaigns against the Italians. The chiefs included Kagnaz Match Mokria, chief of the Ethiopian imperial guard before the country was subjugated by Italy.

Swiss Anticipate France Will Sign an Early Peace

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Switzerland, June 16.—Radio reports of the collapse of the cabinet of Premier Paul Reynaud in France caused no surprise in Switzerland tonight. An early peace in France is expected.

Russia Extends Troop Concentrations in Baltic

Russia extended its troop concentrations in the Baltic yesterday by obtaining permission from Estonia (A) and Latvia (B) for free passage of troops into those countries. It had previously moved into Lithuania (C), which was described as a "giant Russian military camp." Speculation that the movement presaged Russia's entry into the European war was heard.

ITALIANS ATTACK PORTS; MAY BRING EGYPT INTO WAR

Cause 30 Casualties; King in Parley.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, June 16 (AP).—Italian naval airmen were reported tonight to have raided the Egyptian Mediterranean ports of Salum and Sidi Barrani—an act such as Egypt has said might constitute one reason for her going to war.

King Farouk.

The attacks caused 30 casualties among Egyptian soldiers and civilians, said a communique issued at Cairo. Salum and Sidi Barrani are west of Alexandria, near Italian Libya.

Capture Italian Officers.

The communique also said British forces taking Capruzzo, on Libya's Egyptian border, captured eight Italian officers and 200 soldiers.

King Farouk has flown from Alexandria to Cairo to confer with his ministers. All Egypt awaited a government declaration on the Italian attacks. Some observers held, however, that the bombings might have been directed at British air bases—not at Egypt herself.

With 60,000 persons already removed from Alexandria and other cities, the Egyptian government, fearing an Italian mass air attack, prepared tonight to transfer at least 200,000 more.

Raid Alarm Sounded.

Trains, taxicabs, buses, and lorries were requisitioned to carry civilians to the interior.

An air raid warning was sounded this afternoon in Alexandria. Thirty-five minutes after the alarm the all clear signal was given.

Plane maneuvers over the desert evidently caused the alarm.

Alexandria, a city of 682,000, was warned by radio announcement that severe penalties would be imposed for failure to observe blackout warnings. The possibility of martial law and complete blackout was mentioned.

It was reported that leaders of the Senoussi brotherhood, which controls large Arab tribes in the western desert, had offered the Egyptian government support in case of war against Italy.

SOVIET PRESSURE BEHIND TURKISH DECISION ON WAR

Reds Seek to Keep Allies from Black Sea.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 16.—Russian pressure definitely is behind Turkey's decision to keep clear of hostilities, THE TRIBUNE was told today by an excellent Turkish source. Turks yesterday informed foreign diplomats of their decision to avoid any appearance of belligerency, altho Turkey has an alliance with Britain and France.

After the Russians let it be known they would frown on a Turkish move to take part in the war, the Turks launched moves to sound out the Russians on the possibility of a definite understanding, said the informant. The belief is that an agreement will be reached on the basis of a Turkish promise not to allow allied warships to pass thru the Dardanelles.

No Objection on Smyrna.

The Russians do not object to use of the naval base at Smyrna by the allies, it was said, but do not want the allies to approach the entrance to the Black sea.

The Turks argue that they went into the alliance with Britain and France as protection for Turkey, and that since the allies are unable to offer protection the alliance is useless to Turkey. Views on the allied chances of victory are most pessimistic here, and, like other Balkan powers, Turkey apparently thinks it is time to leave a sinking ship.

The Turks say frankly that they favor the allied cause, but feel they were deceived by the allies. They assert they made the treaty because they thought the British and French were strong, and now find they are not.

Agree to Sell Chromium.

New details of the Turco-German trade agreement signed two days ago show it is more important than first admitted. For one thing, the Turks yielded to German pressure and agreed to sell chromium ore, important in the manufacture of high grade steels. Furthermore, this agreement is reported to be merely the first of three which will involve a total of about $60,000,000.

After long delays and negotiation, German Ambassador Franz von Papen exerted pressure when Italy entered the war, declaring that the British could not take away the chromium they had contracted for. The Turks then made the deal.

Old school Turks say that a word is a word and must be kept at any cost, but the more modern, realistic group says it is time to adopt a new line in its policy.

Reds Deny Sponsoring Pact.

MOSCOW, June 16 (AP).—Soviet Russia tonight denied a British report that steps were being taken under Moscow's direction to conclude a stronger antiaggression pact among Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, and Turkey to "offer resistance to German and Italian expansion."

DE VALERA AND COSGRAVE JOIN IN IRISH UNITY RALLY

Dublin Thousands Cheer as Old Foes Meet.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Ireland, June 16.—More than 40,000 persons on the college green of Dublin today heard Eamon de Valera, head of the government; William Cosgrave, leader of the opposition party, and William Norton, Labor leader, discuss the war situation.

The meeting was presided over by Francis Fahy, chairman of the dail eireann [parliament]. The demonstration was intended to show national solidarity in view of the threatened invasion of Ireland and the determination of the people to resist.

De Valera and Cosgrave had not appeared together in any public function since their split over acceptance of the 1921 treaty by which Ireland accepted dominion status from Britain.

As both came on the platform in front of the Bank of Ireland, which was Ireland's house of parliament a hundred years ago, they were wildly cheered. No such evidence of national unanimity had been seen here since the British government vainly attempted in 1918 to conscript Irishmen to fight in the world war.

Tells of Increasing Peril.

De Valera warned the gathering that the nation is in danger that increases hourly, and asserted that Ireland was solidly determined to resist, as in 1918, intervention from any quarter. This has never been a nation of slackers, he added.

The response to Ireland's call for volunteers to man her defenses has been magnificent, De Valera said, but more must be forthcoming. The people must not think of business as usual, he asserted in arming the civilian population it must think of the security of the country.

"When one's neighbor's house is afire there is no time to think of business as usual," he added.

Asks United Front.

Addressing a section of the people not represented in the gathering, De Valera said there was no time to discuss what to do with liberty when there were threats that it would be taken away.

He called on these people to stand shoulder to shoulder with their brothers to preserve their liberty. He said he regretted that all of Ireland was not united because a united land would be much easier to defend and people would more gladly lay down their lives for it.

"This country has no enmity against any people," De Valera declared. "The people could not influence this conflict; all they sought was self-preservation and neutrality. We are interdependent in this community, and if God brings us thru this crisis with our liberties intact we shall use them to the best advantage of every citizen."

Cosgrave told the people they must not delude themselves that they will be certain to come thru, as they did in the last war, without destruction. "May God give us victory," he concluded.

Norton spoke along similar lines. Fahy announced that in the last two weeks 50,000 recruits had been registered for the new defense services.

GERMAN YEARLY TAX BILL COSTS $126 PER PERSON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 16.—The German Institute for Business Research today stated that in October, November and December, German taxpayers paid 6,300,000,000 marks or $2,520,000,000 in taxes [figuring the mark at the German official rate of 40 cents].

Considering the German population as 80,000,000 this means a yearly tax bill of $126 per person. This does not include the compulsory payments for insurance and Nazi organizations.

The economic expert of the Boersenzeitung, the organ of the armed forces, boasted that all measures for the economic and financial organization of the war were prepared since 1933. "This gives us a decisive advance over the other powers which are now trying to improve a system of planned war economy on the foundations of a free or semifree economy," the paper stated.

FRENCH VESSEL LOADS GUNS AT NEW YORK PIER

New York, June 16 (AP).—Tons of ammunition and gun equipment were loaded aboard the 30,000 ton French liner Pasteur today. The vessel, well armed, slipped unannounced into New York harbor last Tuesday.

Officials warded off visitors at a Hudson river pier as longshoremen struggled up gangplanks with long wooden crates stamped "Min. Arms." It took several men to carry each crate.

On the water side of the pier caissons for French .75 millimeter guns were loaded from several lighters. The barrels for the .75s were said to have been taken aboard earlier.

Built in 1938, the Pasteur carries a crew of 200 and now is operated by the British admiralty. The vessel's sailing date and destination were unrevealed.

Girl Slayer Escapes

ETHEL SOHL.

Clinton, N. J., June 16 (AP).—Ethel Sohl, 22 years old, convicted two years ago of first degree murder in the holdup slaying of a bus driver, escaped early today from the New Jersey state reformatory for women. Two other women prisoners broke out with her.

Miss Sohl, during her trial in Newark, admitted a career of crime but blamed the slaying of William Barhorst, 34, in Belleville on Dec. 21, 1937, to bad company and smoking marihuana.

Genevieve Owens, now 19, convicted with Miss Sohl in the Barhorst slaying and sentenced to the Clinton reformatory, did not take part in the escape. They had been kept apart at the reformatory.

A reformatory official said Ethel Sohl had not been a serious problem, had taken active part in athletics and "seemed to have responded to our treatment." She was the daughter of a Newark policeman and at the time of her arrest was married to an inmate of a state penal institution.

Extend Ban Against Aliens to New Areas in Britain

LONDON, June 16 (AP).—New areas in the counties of Buckingham, Hertford, Middlesex, and Northampton were added by the government today to the zone where aliens may not enter or reside except with special police permits. The four counties affected are inland and lie north of London. Aliens already are banned in coastal counties.

PRISONER LISTS SWAMP BUREAU OF RED CROSS

Total Secret; 100 Swiss Work on Figures.

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 16 (AP).—The prisoners bureau of the International Red Cross was almost swamped today with lists of prisoners coming from both the allies and the Germans after the Nazis' drive thru the Low Countries and the battle for Paris.

Red Cross officials declined to estimate the total either of those registered or those still coming in. Informed sources said, however, the Germans alone had reported a total of 1,200,000 prisoners by June 5. The German high command had issued substantially the same figure. These were divided as follows: 500,000 Belgians, 400,000 Dutch, 200,000 French, and 100,000 mixed British, Belgian, and French not yet classified.

Thousands of Letters Pour in.

Two hundred Swiss volunteers are working in the prisoners bureau. One hundred more are working thru the long official lists from Berlin, Paris, and London, and the tens of thousands of letters from individuals seeking news for their families. In the first six months the bureau handled 580,000 letters, but expects as many queries within the next two weeks.

France and Italy have got all their diplomats into Switzerland from each other's capitals.

The Italian ambassador to Paris and 250 members of his staff and their families passed thru Geneva today and arrived at Brig, on the Swiss side of the Simplon tunnel from Italy.

Trains Pass French Party.

Their two trains continued toward Italy, passing a trainload of 200 French diplomats and consular officials, headed by Ambassador André François Poncet, who were waiting at Brig.

When the Italians reached Brig, the trainload of Frenchmen who had been at the Swiss station since early morning pulled out for France by way of Lausanne and Vallorbe.

The Brazilian consul general met the Italians at Geneva and accompanied them to Brig. Brazil is representing Italian interests in France.

JAPANESE BOMB SPLINTERS PERIL U. S. GUNBOAT

10,000 Homeless After Attack on Chungking.

CHUNGKING, China, June 16 (AP).—Bombs fell so close to the United States gunboat Tutuila during a Japanese raid on Chungking today that smoke obscured the ship and the men had to seek shelter.

Lieut. Robert Germany, commanding the 370 ton craft, said bomb fragments showered over the boat.

Eyewitnesses said one group of bombers flew directly over the United States embassy while explosives were showered over district after district of Chungking and rained upon the foreign consular area.

Altho the British embassy and the French consulate were in the danger area, they were not harmed.

Five Raiders Downed.

Sixteen Chinese pursuit planes brought down five of the raiders.

Five hundred bombs dropped by the planes left more than 10,000 persons homeless and caused about 100 casualities. Many bombs fell in vacant areas.

The French Catholic mission's primary school was demolished, and the Bible school building nearby was shattered.

One bomb fell in the center of Chungking's foreign cemetery, demolishing every headstone.

Mission Residences Damaged.

Three American mission residences were slightly damaged. Fires destroyed three blocks of wooden structures near the Seventh Day Adventist mission.

The Chungking hotel, where 20 foreigners were living, was demolished. There were no casualties. The hotel was hit in a previous raid.

The hotel housed the office of the Chinese American Cultural institute and the office of the New York Times bureau.

The raid followed a lull of two days in Japanese bombing attacks on Chungking.

Chinese Gunmen in Canton Kill Pro-Japanese General

HONGKONG, June 17 [Monday] (AP).—A belated Chinese dispatch reported today that Gen. Fui Chun-Yung, commander in chief of the pro-Japanese "Peace and National Salvation Army," was wounded fatally by Chinese gunmen in Canton, June 9. The incident led to enforcement of martial law and arrest of more than 3,000 Chinese.

CAR OF PLANE MOTORS SAVED FROM FIRE BY CANADIAN RAIL GUARD

SARNIA, Ont., June 16 (AP). — A Canadian National railways guard thwarted last night an apparent attempt to fire a freight car laden with airplane motors en route from a Montana plant to Fort Erie, Ont.

Thomas Laing, the guard, said he discovered a fire in the car shortly after the train left Port Huron, Mich., for this Canadian border point, just across the St. Clair river. Strips of blanket soaked in an inflammable liquid had been shoved into the car thru holes bored in the floor and set afire.

Laing extinguished the blaze before damage was done. The four motors, consigned by the Glendale Motors at Kenna, Mont., were transferred at Port Huron during the day for shipment to the fleet aircraft corporation at Fort Erie.

REPORTS FRENCH MORALE LOWER BEHIND LINES

LONDON, June 16 (AP).—The French newspaper Petite Gironde complained that "morale behind the lines is not so high as at the front," stated a Reuters [British news agency] dispatch tonight from Bordeaux.

BLOW AT BRITAIN ABOUT TO BEGIN, NAZIS INDICATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 16.—The Boersenzeitung, the publication of German's armed forces, today published a full page map of England, which was taken to indicate that the public should get ready for a German attack on England.

Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister, writing in a new publication, "Das Reich," also forecast an attack on England, at least indirectly. All previous German offensives have been foreshadowed by propaganda campaigns.

Goebbels assailed England's minister of information, Alfred Duff Cooper and called the English an enigma, adding:

"Their character is a mixture of brutal mendacity, bigoted hypocrisy, and pietistic Godlikeness—they are the Jews among the Aryans. They are the kind of men whose teeth have to be knocked out before you can talk reason to them."

Illinois Normal Will Get U. S. Pilot Training Unit

Bloomington, Ill., June 16 [Special].—The federal government wants to establish an air pilot training unit at Illinois State Normal university, President R. W. Fairchild said today. Tentative plans call for a 72 hour ground school course to be handled on the campus with flying instruction to be given at the Bloomington Municipal airport. Thirty students will be in the first group to be trained.

AUSTRALIA CALLS PARLIAMENT TO SPECIAL SESSION

SYDNEY, Australia, June 16 (AP).—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies has summoned parliament to a special session on June 20 to seek approval for "vital and drastic" measures to implement Australia's war effort.

External Affairs Minister John McEwen said "it is evident that the main burden of the war now falls on the empire. The full implication of that must be realized by every citizen."

A fortnight's speeding up of industries has made it possible to begin production on munitions worth about $200,000,000, employing 150,000 men and women.

REFUGEES CROSS FRONTIER; FIND A SWISS HAVEN

Get Food and Shelter; Thousands Expected.

FAHY, ON THE FRENCH-SWISS BORDER, June 16 (AP).—France's refugees, heretofore streaming by the million into the south of their fatherland before invading armies, for the first time today were fleeing into a foreign land.

The Swiss were feeding and sheltering the French refugees by the hundreds. In months past the refugees may have sheltered and fed Dutch, Belgians, and Poles, and, before this war started, perhaps even Germans and Spaniards.

Soon, the refugees said, there will be thousands of others seeking their way to this mountain island of peace.

Clear Path for New Battle.

The whole valley of the upper Doubs river and the French province of Franchecomte may become a new war front. Thousands of villagers are leaving the area and moving toward Switzerland.

In the war of 1871 a total of 70,000 French troops crossed the frontier and dropped their arms in Switzerland. German and Italian sources said it might happen now, but there was no indication of such a development.

High above the refugees were German bombing and fighting planes. At the rear spread German motorized columns, with French troops of the Maginot line fighting a rearguard action to hold them off. The new French line was based on Besancon.

Some refugees said they saw German planes machine gun roads on which no troops were in sight.

Almost all of those who arrived at Fahy were afoot. Only a few decrepit horses pulled wagons.

Mother and 2 Walk 45 Miles.

Mme. Daniel Wiedmer, 32 years old and pretty, said she walked all the way from her home at Aillevillers, 45 miles away. Her two children were with her—Paulette, 12, and Gaston, 9—bright eyed and excited over their experience.

"The last I heard of my husband he was in Besancon," she said. "They tell me he isn't there now."

They had no money and they didn't know where they were going.

"My God, we are refugees," Mme. Wiedmer cried. "I had read about them and seen pictures of them. But to be them——"

She burst into tears.

Mme. Jules Boname, about 40, accompanied by her 15 year old son, carried her marriage certificate, insurance policies, and a few thousand French francs in bonds. Her husband was at the front.

Escapes Assassin

Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, who escaped assassin's bullet in Mexico, pictured with youthful presidential booster.

HERMOSILLO, Sonora, Mexico, June 16 (AP).—One person was killed and several others wounded last night in what Gen. Francisco Borquez, retired army leader, reported was an attempt to assassinate Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, antiadministration candidate for the Mexican presidency.

The riot, during which the assassination attempt allegedly took place, was at the railroad station as Almazan and his retinue arrived from Nogales for a rally. Stones were thrown and a number of shots were fired before Almazan could be spirited away for his appearance at the Juarez stadium, Borquez said. He added that a supporter of Gen. Avila Camacho, rival candidate for the presidency, was disarmed of a long dagger when within a few paces of Almazan. The slain man was listed as Narcisso Carena, an Almazan follower.

After the rally Almazan repaired to Borquez' home for the night. As a protective measure, a cordon of federal troops guarded the house. This morning Almazan left for Navojoa, Sonora, en route back to Mexico City, where he will complete his campaign on election eve, July 6.

SURVEY CHICAGO ALIENS HANDLING DEFENSE ORDERS

Plants, Utilities, Transit Lines Guard Rolls.

All Chicago companies handling war department orders have been requested by the government to determine the number of aliens in their employ. This was learned last night from an official of one of the increasing number of concerns making such surveys.

Utility and transportation companies, some of which are following the same procedure, are doing so voluntarily in the expectation that such a step might be required of them later as a defense precaution.

Surface Lines Begins Survey.

The Chicago Surface Lines began a survey last week. Officials of the Chicago Rapid Transit company [elevated lines] said they deem it unnecessary to take similar action, recalling that in the world war all aliens employed on the lines were investigated. Since then a policy of not hiring aliens has been followed, they said.

However, it was learned that the Commonwealth Edison company and the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company are taking precautionary measures. George A. Ranney, board chairman of the gas company, said that records as to citizenship are being "kept up to date."

Britton I. Budd, president of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, reported that this concern has learned that all except about five of its employés are citizens. No one who has not taken out first papers for citizenship gets on the pay roll. Employés average 15 years' service, he said.

Crane Company Survey Made.

The Crane company, which employs approximately 8,000 persons and is working on war department orders, made a survey of its workers shortly after Great Britain and France declared war on Germany. Charles B. Nolte, president, said this was done voluntarily and disclosed only a small number of aliens.

The Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company, with about 1,000 employés, made an investigation last summer, according to L. B. Sauer, vice president.

"Any company with government orders has done the same thing or is doing it," Sauer said. "It is required by the federal bureau of investigation. We have not been asked to get photographs and fingerprints of our employés, however, as has been done in the case of a large Cleveland electric plant."

Sidney G. McAllister, president of the International Harvester Co., said he was not ready to talk about reports that this company also is counting and identifying aliens in its factories.

Whiskered Visitors

Forty Iowans from Tipton brought a picture of the past to Chicago yesterday. They were members of the Tipton Whisker club. Every one of them sported a gay beard or dapper mustache—or both. All were attired in costumes in style a century ago. The occasion was Tipton's centennial. As a reminder of how their ancestors looked, the Tiptonians got out the old suits, and grew whiskers to match those showing in old photographs. Some of the visitors said they liked their beards so much that they would keep them permanently—if their wives permitted. The group, part of a Tipton delegation of 500, ended its Chicago stay last night with a dinner at the Lincoln Turner café, 1005 Diversey parkway.

ENGLAND RINGS WITH PRAYER FOR FRANCE'S RESCUE

Churches Thruout Land Join in Supplication.

LONDON, June 16 (AP).—Churches of all denominations thruout the country observed today as a day of prayer for France.

Cardinal Arthur Hinsley, preaching the high mass in Westminster cathedral, declared "France is fighting for everything she holds sacred. Pray now, pray daily, pray always."

Referring to the "mad onslaught of mechanized legions," Cardinal Hinsley said the "fate of the free peoples of the world hangs in the balance between these hordes and the unequal forces of our gallant allies, aided by the British.

"Our prayers have been answered in marvelous ways at Dunkirk. Not alone on tanks, battleships and airborne forces but on God depends victory; to Him we must turn with a renewal of our hearts if our supplications are to win His divine intervention."

King Haakon and Crown Prince Olaf of Norway attended for the first time the Norwegian church at Rotherhithe in London's east side. The congregation also included Norwegian diplomats.

After the service the émigré king and Olaf were cheered by a crowd that included British soldiers and sailors.

British, French, Belgians, Dutch, Russians, Estonians, Latvians, and Swiss were among the congregation at the French Reformed Evangelical church in London. "We are passing thru a fiery furnace, but we shall pass thru it brilliantly," the minister, Jean Lageard, told them.

SEN. PITTMAN FLAYS COL. LINDBERGH FOR PRO-PEACE SPEECH

Washington, D. C., June 16 (AP).—Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.] called on Col. Charles A. Lindbergh tonight to "throw aside all of his false political advisers and volunteer in the United States government as an expert in aviation."

"Let Col. Lindbergh cease efforts to create unfounded war fear and lack of confidence in our government," Pittman said in a radio reply to Lindbergh's speech of last night, in which the flyer asked the nation to curb its war fever and charged that a small war mongering minority perils the nation's future.

"Let Col. Lindbergh and his advisers know that when one fools with politics in a national emergency, he is fooling with disaster," said Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. He asserted that Lindbergh objected to the furnishing of war materials to England and France on the ground "that this will lead us into war."

"Well, suppose it does," the senator added. "Who would institute and conduct the war? Not the United States, but Germany."

2D ARMY DRILLS WILL TEST U. S. BLITZKRIEG IDEA

65,000 Men to Try Out Gen. Forrest's Plan.

Training in the 1940 conception of confederate General Nathan Bedford Forrest's famous strategy — "to get there fustest with the mostest men" — will be given 65,000 members of the regular army and National Guard when the 2d army mobilizes for maneuvers at Camp McCoy, Wis., Aug. 11 to 31.

Lieut. Gen. Ford.

This type of maneuver bears marked resemblance to Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg, but the United States army prefers to call it speedy movement and concentration of troops.

Guard Officers Reconnoiter.

Details of the mobilization plans were announced yesterday by Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, 2d army commander. At the same time senior officers of the 33d division [Illinois National Guard] left to reconnoiter the 500 square miles of the maneuver area. They were headed by Col. Harry Hill, chief of staff.

The troops will move to Camp McCoy by 150 separate motor convoys, and over 27 major railroads from 312 stations. During the three days of concentration approximately 75 detachments will arrive at the maneuver area daily. In addition to personnel, about 1,200 tons of National Guard equipment will be transported by railroad, including 179 combat cars from Fort Knox, Ky., prime movers for 75 mm. howitzers and half track ambulances.

Mobilization is Mechanized.

All mobilization will be effected by mechanical transportation, Lieut. Gen. Ford said, terming the problem of concentration of troops and demobilization at the end of maneuvers one of the most important phases of the training program. No doughboy will have weary feet from hiking—at least until the maneuvers start.

One of the more spectacular movements will be the march of the mechanized 7th cavalry brigade, minus its track vehicles, over the highways from Fort Knox to Camp McCoy. The brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, will form a column of more than 1,000 vehicles approximately 60 miles long. The motorized 6th infantry, regular army, which was attached to the mechanized brigade during the recent southern maneuvers, will rejoin Gen. Chaffee's command for the exercises.

30,000 to Go by Motor.

A total of about 30,000 troops will move to maneuvers by motor. They will bivouac overnight where necessary. The troops moving by train will be gathered at rail centers on 78 regular and special trains. Field kitchens will be set up in baggage cars, and no stops will be made for meals.

The track vehicles, including tanks from the four National Guard units participating, will be transported by rail.

Lieut. Gen. Ford warned the public that military motor movements will be particularly heavy on Aug. 11, 12, 13, and 29, 30, 31, on U. S. highway 12 between Madison and Black River Falls; on U. S. highway 16 between Watertown and La Crosse; on U. S. highway 14 between Madison and La Crosse, and on U. S. highway 61 between Dubuque and La Crosse. All the cities mentioned are in Wisconsin except Dubuque, in Iowa.

JEWISH CONGRESS SPEAKER BLASTS NAZI PROPAGANDA

Nearly 500 members of the Chicago division of the American Jewish congress heard an appeal last night to halt Nazi propaganda in the United States. The speaker, at a dinner in the Palmer House, was the Rev. William C. Kernan of New York City, an Episcopal clergyman. He charged that Nazi fifth columnists have been waging a propaganda war against this country for seven years.

The Rev. Mr. Kernan quoted Adolf Hitler as asserting that America must be brought back to national purity thru the establishment of German-American superiority. The propaganda war, the clergyman declared, is a one sided affair in which every opportunity has been given the Nazis to destroy American unity, spread religious hatred, and ridicule democratic ideals.

Max Kopstein, president of the Chicago division of the congress, presided at the dinner, which was held in honor of Leo H. Lowitz, former president of the Chicago division.

Moslems in India Move to Intensify War Effort

Bombay, June 16 (AP).—The working committee of the All India Moslem league today authorized exploratory conversations with the viceroy on effective measures to mobilize India's resources for intensification of her war effort and for her own defense. The resolution stated the league viewed "the menace of growing Nazi aggression" with alarm.

PLAN NEW FLEET TO PROTECT EAST COAST OF NATION

2 Ocean Navy Proposal Expected Soon.

Washington, D. C. June 16 (AP).—Congressional sources well informed on naval affairs predicted today that the administration soon would propose construction of a powerful Atlantic fleet built around a new type warship.

Rep. Carl Vinson.

The possibility of Nazi capture or destruction of the French and British fleets, these sources said, indicated a necessity for additional American naval strength in the Atlantic. The main fleet now is based in the Pacific and naval strategists feel that it should be kept there.

At the same time, it was authoritatively reported that the naval high command had abandoned any idea of revising the current naval building program to provide a greater number of ships of smaller and faster types than originally contemplated.

Hints at Statement Today.

Chairman Carl Vinson [D., Ga.], of the house naval committee said that the present program would not be disturbed. He hinted he might have a statement on the subject Monday.

Other sources said that the navy's general board, studying the problems created by developments in the European war, had rejected the idea of abandoning or postponing construction of battleships and large aircraft carriers in favor of smaller vessels. As a result, the navy will proceed with work on a second pair of 45,000 ton battleships—to be the biggest in the fleet.

There was no authoritative information concerning the new type warship reported planned for the Atlantic, but Representative Melvin J. Maas [R., Minn.], an early advocate of a two ocean navy, forecast that it would be something in the nature of a fast, powerful cruiser of about 20,000 to 28,000 tons, heavily armored and carrying 11-inch guns.

Range for South Atlantic.

He said it would have to be designed to withstand aerial bombardment, be able to operate efficiently in narrow waters and yet have the range for operations in the South Atlantic.

It would be supported by fast and possibly oversize destroyers, he said.

"The European war has demonstrated," Maas said, "that the big battleship is totally unsuited for narrow waters or close offshore work. That's the first reason for building a new type.

"The second is that to get an adequate Atlantic fleet as quickly as possible, we will have to concentrate on smaller ships."

Two Bund Officials Are Released After Questioning

Reading, Pa., Jun 16 (AP).—Pennsylvania state troopers arrested two high ranking officers of the German-American bund yesterday, but released them today after questioning. Police identified the two as Gerhard Wilhelm Kunze, 34, of New York, acting leader of the bund, and Gustav Joseph Elmer, 49, of Hoboken, N. J.

CLING TO 40 HOUR WEEK IN ARSENAL DESPITE URGENCY

No Mass Production in Arms Plant.

Rock Island, Ill., June 16 [Special].—Despite the need for all possible speed in the manufacture of war materials in the big government arsenal here, the 40 hour week decreed by President Roosevelt in his "abundant life" social program was reaffirmed at the plant today.

Col. Norman F. Ramsey.

Moreover, the plant, one of the nation's six large armament producing arsenals, admittedly is not operating on a modern mass production basis. Col. Norman F. Ramsey, commanding officer of the arsenal, gave as his reason for this a shortage of funds necessary for mass production of military equipment.

The urgent need for war material was recognized in a new order from Washington, D. C., increasing the production week at the arsenal to seven days. The order, however, disregarded the proposal, said to have been advanced by army and navy officers, that skilled armament makers be permitted to work more than 40 hours a week.

England Scraps 40 Hour Week.

France's present plight is reported due to the short work week in effect under Leon Blum's Socialist government. While Frenchmen were enjoying a 40 hour week, Hitler was arming Germany on the basis of a 75 hour week. At the outbreak of the war, England scrapped the 40 hour week as inadequate to supply its needs.

Capt. C. W. Fisher, director of the United States naval shore establishments, a month ago proposed to the house naval affairs committee that restrictive labor statutes be relaxed so the navy could speed up its rearmament. The President, however, declared that the national defense program would not be permitted to infringe on his social legislation.

The war department ran afoul of the presidential theory last week when it ordered the Rock Island arsenal to adopt a 48 hour work week with employés being paid for 52 hours' work. Workmen previously had been employed 40 hours a week on a continuous 24 hour a day schedule that entailed the use of three shifts. The arsenal was closed two days a week, Saturday and Sunday.

Order Stands 24 Hours.

This war department order stood for only 24 hours. A new order came from Washington directing that production be placed on a six day week basis with workers putting in only 40 hours a week. War department representatives in Washington admitted that the 48 hour week had to be dropped because it was contrary to the President's social program.

A new order came thru several days later. This time the war department ordered the arsenal's productive departments put on a seven day schedule, with employés working five eight hour days a week. It went into effect yesterday.

Approximately 5,000 men now are employed at the big plant, which is operating at its highest peak since the first world war. The war department has indicated it plans to double the number of production workers.

Thousands of men crowded the arsenal employment office last week seeking work, but only the applications of machinists, machine operators and toolmakers were accepted. The scarcity of skilled craftsmen bore out the prediction that key workers would have to be permitted to work longer hours if production is maintained at a high peak. If restrictions upon its productivity are removed, the arsenal is capable of a tremendous output.

The arsenal now is manufacturing carriages for 37 millimeter antitank guns, making combat cars, or light tanks, converting gun carriages for the 75 millimeter gun of 1897 vintage into modern equipment, and overhauling and modifying machine guns and rifles.

A PAJAMA WANDERER GOES FREE TO SPEND HIS MYSTERIOUS HOARD

North avenue police early yesterday held Dale Tilly, 1629 North Sawyer avenue, in custody until they learned why he was wearing pajamas and where he got the money he was carrying when they found him at Kedzie and North avenues. His father, Harold, after a brief talk with Dale, told police the latter had intended to buy ice cream with the money, a penny. Dale is 3 years old and has just learned how to open the front door of his home.

U. S. Freighter at Bergen During Battle Is Back

Jersey City, N. J., June 16 (AP).—The freighter Charles R. McCormick of the McCormick Steamship Line docked today after a voyage from Norway where, in the midst of a battle in Bergen harbor, several shots from German antiaircraft guns pierced its mast. The McCormick was the last of three American ships to return after being caught in Norway by the Nazi invasion.

DEWEY RETAINS MICHIGAN LEAD IN TRIBUNE POLL

Vandenberg in 2d Place; Willkie Third.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Straws from eight Michigan cities, including Detroit, Grand Rapids, and Flint, are tabulated in today's returns from THE TRIBUNE'S preconvention straw vote on the presidency.

Thomas E. Dewey, New York candidate for the Republican nomination for President, keeps his lead over Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Michigan's favorite son candidate, for whom the state's delegates to the Philadelphia national convention June 24 are instructed. Dewey now has 41.5 per cent of the Republican straws; Vandenberg has 38.4 per cent. So far 12,575 straws, gathered in 21 cities, have been compiled. Of these 6,269 are Republican and 6,306 Democratic.

Vandenberg Lags Behind.

In today's list Vandenberg led Dewey in three canvasses in Grand Rapids, his home city, in one poll in the Detroit business district and in Port Huron.

Dewey leads Vandenberg in five of the eight cities. He is ahead in Ann Arbor, seat of the University of Michigan, of which he is an alumnus; in Ypsilanti, Hastings, Lapeer, and Flint, the scene of automobile sitdown strike disturbances three years ago. Flint gave Dewey 54 per cent of the Republican straws.

Tallies Are Listed.

The tally of Republican straws:

Dewey	2,605	41.55%
Vandenberg	2,406	38.38%
Willkie	936	14.77%
Taft	263	4.19%
Bricker	25	.40%
Martin	11	.18%
Hoover	11	.18%
MacNider	4	.06%
Bridges	3	.05%
Scattering	15	.24%

On the Democratic side, President Roosevelt has almost 89 per cent of the Democratic straws. The tally:

Roosevelt	5,610	88.96%
Hull	294	4.66%
Garner	171	2.71%
McNutt	65	1.03%
Farley	65	1.03%
Wheeler	46	.74%
Smith	33	.52%
Clark	6	.09%
Scattering	10	.16%

Gov. Luren D. Dickinson will head the Michigan delegation to Philadelphia. He was chosen at a caucus of the delegates at Lansing Friday. Clyde B. Smith of Lansing was named a member of the resolutions committee which will prepare the Republican national platform.

LANDON ASSAILS 'LOUD TALKING' BY NEW DEALERS

Alf M. Landon, Republican nominee for President in 1936, assailed "loud talking" by the administration yesterday as he left Chicago for Philadelphia, Pa., to take part in preconvention discussion of the G. O. P. platform by the resolutions committee.

"The administration has been doing a lot of loud talking but has done nothing to prepare us to back it up," Landon said. "This nation's main job right now is to get ready to defend the Monroe Doctrine. Both parties are agreed that the Monroe Doctrine still embodies our foreign policy. I have said before that we ought to have fire extinguishers even in a fireproof house."

Tribune Straw Poll

This tabulation represents additional Michigan results in the ninth day of THE TRIBUNE'S preconvention presidential straw poll among Republican and Democratic voters in Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, and Minnesota. Details are given for leading candidates only.

4 Killed in Clash at Radio Station in Dutch E. Indies

BATAVIA, DUTCH EAST INDIES, June 16 (AP).—Four persons were killed and three injured today in a clash between natives and sentries guarding a radio station at this port. An authoritative statement said the natives probably were religious fanatics. The dead were two natives and two sentries.

WAR INFLUENCE FELT AS G. O. P. CHIEFS GATHER

May Cause Major Clash in Framing of Platform.

form of the Republican state convention in Illinois last Friday, which declared:

"The Republican party stands for Americanism and peace. The Democratic party stands for internationalism and war. We demand, as we have demanded, an adequate national defense to protect the United States, but we insist that not one drop of blood of American youth shall be spilled on a foreign shore for the purpose of interfering in any European or Asiatic conflict."

Blamed for Unpreparedness.

An outstanding plank of the platform will be that on national defense. Party sentiment indicates that this plank will hold the Roosevelt régime responsible for the country's unpreparedness for defense and will pledge the country that the Republicans, if intrusted with power, will introduce the efficiency essential to mobilization of industry for mass production of armament.

Issues arising from the war are affecting the contest for the presidential nomination. District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York is still the outstanding candidate. He is expected to lead the field on the first ballot in the convention, and if he polls on the first ballot anywhere near the 400 or more votes of the necessary 501 that his managers are claiming, he is more than likely to be nominated on an early ballot thereafter.

Opposed to Internationalists.

Ever since the German blitzkrieg swept over Holland and Belgium, however, there has been evidence of increasing opposition to Dewey among the Republican internationalists, particularly along the Atlantic coast. Dewey, who had declared against American intervention in Europe, either in war or in peace, was pronounced unacceptable by the internationalists who began vociferating that he is too young and inexperienced for the presidential job in these critical times.

This development gave Wendell Willkie his start as a contender for the nomination. The Willkie boom was born in Wall street and propagated by the big contributors to the Republican party campaign funds. Willkie suited the Republican old guardsmen, who dislike Dewey. As a utility magnate he suited big business. And as a Republican candidate who indorsed the Roosevelt war policy of intervention in Europe, Willkie suited the Republican internationalists.

Willkie in Second Place.

With this support Willkie zoomed into second place in the standing. While far behind Dewey, he forged ahead of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan. It was evident that he had drawn some delegates away from Dewey in New York and a few other states. The national committee, whose expenses are underwritten by the big contributors, became a hotbed of Willkie sentiment.

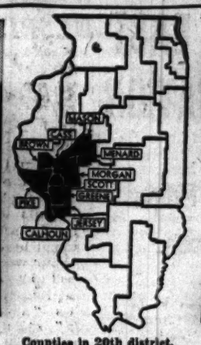
While Willkie thus has stepped out of the dark horse category, his chance of nomination remains extremely remote. As an interventionist, a lifelong Democrat who did not vote the Republican ticket till 1936, a utility magnate, and a supporter of the Roosevelt reciprocal tariff program, he is burdened with political liabilities that the Republicans will be chary of assuming.

Other circumstances operated to strengthen Dewey. He won his fight to oust Kenneth Simpson from the post of New York national committeeman because Simpson opposed the nomination of Dewey. This demonstration of his hold on New York, which the Republicans must carry to win the election, enhanced the Dewey prestige tremendously and halted defections that would have occurred had Simpson won. The indications now are that Dewey will have upward of 70 of the 92 New York delegates on the first roll call.

The increasing certainty that Mr. Roosevelt will be renominated by the Democrats also has operated to strengthen Dewey. Of the Democratic presidential possibilities, Mr. Roosevelt is recognized as the hardest to beat. The Republicans are under the impulsion to choose a candidate best calculated to defeat the President. As the candidate who swept the presidential primaries and has led the straw votes wherever taken, Dewey possesses claims to an invincible popularity that it will be difficult for the convention to disregard.

20th District G. O. P. Delegates

Carl E. Robinson.



Counties in 20th district.

Edward H. Alexander.

This is the ninth in a series of sketches of downstate district delegates to the Republican national convention who will share the task of picking the G. O. P. candidate for President. Delegates from the 20th district are the subjects of today's sketches.

Carl E. Robinson of Jacksonville will be attending his second national convention, for he also was a delegate four years ago.

Robinson is 54 years old and was born in Sangamon county. He was graduated from Illinois college in 1909 and received his law degree from the University of Chicago law school. In college he earned membership in Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity.

In 1916 he was elected state's attorney of Morgan county, serving two four year terms. From 1926 to 1930 he was state representative from the 45th senatorial district.

Robinson is married and has one son. His home is at 1529 Mound avenue, Jacksonville.

Edward H. Alexander of Jacksonville is best known to voters of the state for his activities among the Young Republicans.

Alexander, an insurance man, is 37 years old. He was born in Jacksonville and has lived there all his life. He and Mrs. Alexander and their son live at 857 West State street.

He was elected vice president of the Young Republican Organization of Illinois in 1934, serving in that office for two years. He has been a member of the organization's board of governors since 1938.

For the last four years he has been senatorial committeeman from the 45th district. He is active in civic and social affairs in his community.

PERSONAL LOANS

HOW YOU CAN BORROW $100 IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $6.43 A MONTH

No endorsers or guarantors needed—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Quick, private service.

Do you want to get a loan quickly and simply? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $300 without endorsers or guarantors, if you can make regular monthly payments. From the table below you may choose the payment plan which fits your own purse. You may repay a small amount each month. Or you may make larger payments in order to pay up sooner.

Choose your own payment plan

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will find, for instance, that monthly payments of $9.77 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.43 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

You will pay less if you pay your loan ahead of time since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments include charges at Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100. This rate is less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law.

False Teeth Wearers Often Worst Breath Offenders!

"Need More Than a Mouth Wash" say Authorities . . . Recommend Poligent

A thin dark film collects on plates and bridges. This film soaks up odors and impurities like a sponge! It holds germs and decay bacteria, and it is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. It gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, a powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor. Makes breath sweeter—and plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene. Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere.

Cleans, Purifies Like Magic

Do this daily: Add a little Polident powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes —Rinse—and it's ready to use!

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

SPURN FLAG; 16 AUTOS WRECKED AND 50 ARRESTED

Sect Group Mobbed by Irate Citizens.

Litchfield, Ill., June 16 [Special].—Sixty-one members of Jehovah's Witnesses, a religious sect, were rushed to the city jail here this morning after aroused townspeople attacked them and overturned or destroyed 16 automobiles. The sect members had refused to salute the American flag.

Map shows where sect members are attacked.

Chief of Police George W. Taylor was forced to ask assistance from Sheriff Leo Gilliland of nearby Hillsboro, the county seat, when a crowd estimated at 1,000 townsfolk milled threateningly around the tiny jail. Ten state highway policemen under Lieut. Raymond May also hurried to the scene.

Taken to County Seat.

Later state police began transporting the sect members—34 women and 27 men—to Hillsboro, where it was said they would be fingerprinted and then probably released.

Townspeople asserted that the Witnesses had been warned to remain away from Litchfield on previous occasions. One woman said the American Legion had run members of the group out of town a week ago. Efforts of the sect to hire a hall for a meeting have been balked.

Literature, entitled "Religion as a World Remedy," was burned in the streets. Thirteen cars were driven to a vacant lot and overturned. Three others were driven into an old reservoir. One Witness is said to have been beaten until he kissed the flag.

Mainly from Missouri.

Most of the automobiles, bearing Missouri license plates, arrived in town about 10 a. m. Indignant citizens began phoning the authorities within a moments as the Witnesses rang doorbells and began distributing pamphlets, some of which werely advertised a coming national convention of the sect.

One woman who phoned said she was told by police that "the Legion and others are out rounding them up." A short while later there were fist fights in the northeast part of town, a residential section, as four or five of the men Witnesses stoutly refused to salute the flag.

A few of the Witnesses were scratched or bruised. So far as could be learned there were no serious injuries. The major damage was done to the autos.

OVERTIME WORK RECORD IS SET BY LEGISLATURES

The council of state governments reported yesterday that state legislatures have put in more overtime during the last 14 years than for any other similar period in American history.

The council's report, covering the period beginning in 1927, showed there have been 252 special sessions called since 1930. In 1933 there were 43 regular sessions and 43 special sessions. In 1934 there were 38 special sessions. In 1936 there were 46, most of them concerned with state legislation needed to meet the federal social security program.

Illinois and Texas, with 19 special sessions, led all other states for the period.

Washington Democrats a Unit for Roosevelt

Yakima, Wash., June 16 (AP).—Washington's delegation to the Democratic national convention was pledged today to vote as a unit for President Roosevelt. The state convention selected 19 delegates favoring the President and one—Hugh Delacy of Seattle, Washington Commonwealth federation president—who had expressed opposition to the President's foreign policies. The delegation caucused and voted 19 to 1 to vote as a unit at the national session. Delacy asked that the record show he was agreeing under protest. The 20 delegates will cast only 16 votes, delegates at large having only half a vote each.

8 SHERIFFS MEET TODAY ON FIFTH COLUMN PERILS

Sheriffs of seven Illinois counties will meet with Sheriff Marcus W. Damisch of Kane county today to consider ways and means of combating subversive and fifth column activities thruout the state.

The law enforcement officers will gather for lunch at 1 p.m. in the Hotel Baker at St. Charles. The meeting was arranged by Sheriff Damisch, who is president of the Illinois Sheriffs' association. The association convention will be held at Decatur Wednesday and Thursday, and resolutions to be submitted to the convention may be drafted today.

"Our purpose," said Damisch," will be to cooperate with state and federal authorities, particularly the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in obtaining any information required on subversive groups and individuals. We will ask veterans' organizations to join us."

The sheriffs of La Salle, De Kalb, Du Page, Kendall, McHenry, Kankakee, and Winnebago counties will attend the St. Charles conference.

Bermuda Censors Return 23 Bags of Mail to Clipper

HAMILTON, Bermuda, June 16 (AP).—British censors today returned 23 bags of mail to the Azores-bound Yankee Clipper after seizing it last night for examination. Officials did not announce whether any material was removed. A heavy sea at Horta caused the Clipper to stop here on its flight from New York. The Dixie Clipper is expected tomorrow en route to the United States from the Azores.

CAMPFIRES LIGHT PATH TO SUMMER SCOUTING THRILLS

Boys of Chicago Council Take to the Trail.

The Boy Scouts are tramping the roads again. At night their campfires flare in the darkness of forests on the edge of the city. In the early morning their reveilles rise clear above the stir of wakening birds.

It is a preparedness that has been going on here for 30 years, the preparedness of building boys into men by means of the outdoors. The Chicago Boy Scouts refer to it casually as camping. Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the Scout movement, called it self-reliance and character building.

Year Round Activity.

Camping is a year round activity with the Chicago council of the Boy Scouts of America. But in spring and early summer, when the first white May apple flowers lie hidden in their big cabbage-like leaves and the sun warms the ripples of inland lakes for swimming, then camping becomes scouting's major activity.

Because the Chicago council is the largest in the country [Cicero and Blue Island are also within its jurisdiction], it operates three year round week-end camps and two full time summer camps.

The two summer camps will be opened July 1 for almost 24,000 Boy and Sea Scouts in the council. Camp Kiwanis, nestling deep in the heart of Palos Park, will run on a five week schedule for eight periods. The Owasippe camping system, composed of three camps on Crystal lake and three on Big Blue lake, near Whitehall, Mich., will operate for four two week camping periods.

Glimpse of Camp Life.

A week-end visitor at Camp Kiwanis, which is also maintained as a week-end camp, would have understood Baden-Powell's philosophy.

"Where's dad? We want a project." A group of tenderfoots, proud in their khaki, clamored at the door of the equipment office. "Dad" is cheerful, pepper-haired John Williamson, who has been caretaker of Kiwanis for five years.

"Dad's gone to Argo but I'll give you a project," a sturdy Eagle Scout in charge replied. "Go haul logs around the big campfire for seats at the powwow this evening." The youngsters went whooping away to their task. It would mean points for their troop.

"They're great lads," Scoutmaster Edward Tatina of Troop 715 commented. "And not a sleepy head among them. When they get up at dawn for a nature hike, they are as excited at identifying the whistle of the red-winged blackbird as they would be listening to a prize fight on the radio. When they learn to blaze a trail, they think they're Daniel Boones."

WARNS AGAINST MOB HYSTERIA IN FIGHTING FIFTH COLUMN PERIL

Washington, D. C., June 16 (AP).—Francis Biddle, solicitor general of the United States, declared tonight "there is no cause for mass hysteria, no justification for mob violence" in dealing with the fifth column menace.

"The department of justice is well equipped to recognize the real danger spots and to deal with them vigorously," he said in an address prepared for radio delivery. "With the coöperation of the American people the justice department will root out espionage and sabotage wherever it threatens. The people must be alert and watchful—and, above all, cool and sane.

"Since mob violence will make the government's task infinitely more difficult, it will not be tolerated. We shall not defeat the Nazi evil by emulating its methods. Do not let the subtle propaganda of race hatred turn you against any group in this country as a group. Remember that internal dissension is what the fifth column hopes for."

THE BULLITT DISPATCH.

On Thursday morning THE TRIBUNE published a dispatch from Walter Trohan, a member of its Washington bureau, saying that Ambassador Bullitt had reported to our government several days previously that France was considering making a separate peace with Germany. Mr. Bullitt was said to have added that Premier Reynaud stood alone in favor of continuing the struggle. His cabinet and his army command felt that nothing was to be gained from continuing the unequal struggle.

In Washington on Thursday one of the President's secretaries, Stephen Early, took occasion to denounce the story as wholly false. He said: "I am lacking in decent language to deny that story. The Tribune story was denied by the state department from 5 p. m. last night. . . . THE TRIBUNE disregarded that denial and continued publication of an erroneous story, knowing it was erroneous. That leads me to wonder whether all the news published in the United States is published from an American patriotic point of view or a foreign point of view."

The question is whether Mr. Bullitt did or did not send word that Premier Reynaud stood alone among responsible French leaders in favor of continuing the war. Mr. Early lays down the proposition that an official denial from Washington is to be regarded as conclusive evidence on this point. A good deal of experience with politics and politicians suggests the wisdom of placing something less than complete confidence in such denials.

There will be no final determination of the issue until the French and American diplomatic archives are thrown open. Meanwhile a number of relevant points may profitably be borne in mind. One of them is that Mr. Trohan is an experienced reporter who knows his way around in Washington and is not easily intimidated. Another is that Mr. Bullitt has been working very closely with the French government, enjoying its full confidence, and he has been active in promoting such measures as the sale of the army's guns and the navy's planes to France. Mr. Bullitt could have had no reason for minimizing the critical position and both his own desires and the influence of M. Reynaud would have urged him to paint the picture in dark colors in order to win a prompt commitment of further aid.

So much for the general background. Numerous dispatches from France tend strongly to confirm the accuracy of the Trohan dispatch. For example, Mr. H. R. Knickerbocker, the experienced correspondent of the International News Service, cabled as follows from Tours about the time the Early statement was being issued:

"President Roosevelt's offer of all possible material aid to the allies arrived in the nick of time and as a result the French government has decided to continue the struggle." Dispatches from Tours are being subjected to severe censorship. What can Mr. Knickerbocker have meant except that France [at the time Mr. Bullitt sent his message, if one was sent] was on the verge of ceasing hostilities? If that was the fact, can it be seriously doubted that Mr. Bullitt knew it and sent the word along to the state department?

That it was the fact is confirmed by other dispatches from Tours. On Friday the Associated Press correspondent wrote:

"IF the fight goes on, the Loire river line would be the next really strong natural barrier. . . ."

The Associated Press at this point inserted an editorial note as follows: "This dispatch was heavily censored. The phrase, 'if the fight goes on' was considered extremely significant."

About the same time, Edgar Ansel Mowrer of the Chicago Daily News was writing:

"If President Roosevelt and the American people promise real American assistance to France immediately, the war continues; if they say no or maybe, the war in this territory and so far as France is concerned will soon be over. . . . Without American assistance France will quit. . . . There is little else that France can do. . . .

"Nothing in the great war was as horribly dramatic or nearly so tragic as the Supreme council meeting last night when the British met the French. Then the French cabinet met and seemed on the point of capitulation. Only a later meeting took the decision to wait. . . ."

If Mr. Mowrer knew that the French cabinet "seemed on the point of capitulation" there is no reason to doubt that Mr. Bullitt knew it first and so informed Washington.

Again, the United Press reported from London that Great Britain "has agreed to accept whatever future political and military decisions France is forced to make—carrying on the war alone against Germany if the French should be forced to capitulate."

These are quotations from observers. There is evidence also from the premier of France himself. The day Mr. Trohan's dispatch was published M. Reynaud spoke as follows in a public address in Tours:

"Our fight, each day more painful, has no further sense if in continuing we do not see even far away the hope of a common victory growing." With the French premier thinking in such terms, Mr. Bullitt would surely have been justified in informing Washington that the French were desperate; to have failed to inform Washington of the state of their minds would have been a serious neglect of duty.

As was said before, the issue of veracity between Mr. Trohan and Mr. Early will not be settled finally until the archives are opened. Meanwhile it is worthy of note that White House and state department denials are not to be taken too seriously. Both the White House and the state department denied another Tribune story last February which said that Mr. Bullitt and Ambassador Kennedy were out of sympathy with the Sumner Welles mission to Europe. The truth of that story has now been confirmed in "American White Paper," a publication which had the blessing of the President himself.

ILLINOIS WANTS NO WAR.

The men and women who assembled for the Republican state convention last Friday in Springfield were the practical executives of the party organization. It is their task to organize and operate the machinery for rallying the voters in support of the party's candidates and principles. Of necessity they must know what the voters are thinking.

What the convention had to say thus came from the grass roots. When the convention voted unanimously for the plank that named the Democrats as the war party and the Republicans as the peace party in this country, it was doing more than voicing the slogan behind which Republicans of the nation must unite to win the November election. It was reflecting the overwhelming sentiment of the voters with whom the party leaders are in touch.

The attempt to spread the war hysteria to Illinois has been a failure. The tub thumpers for intervention can beat the bottom out of their instrument, but no one listens to them. The unanimity of the Republican convention proved that.

In its other phases the convention showed the party a united organization. The Republicans have no defeated candidates sulking in their tents. Dwight H. Green, the nominee for governor, acknowledged in warm terms the support offered him immediately after the primary by his opponent in that contest, Richard J. Lyons, and Mr. Lyons showed himself in the front rank of the party's fighters.

The convention called the attention of the state's national convention delegates to the huge preferential vote rolled up by Thomas E. Dewey, in a resolution drafted by Mr. Dewey's managers. While the vote is technically not binding on the delegates, it is an expression of sentiment that cannot be ignored and there is no reason to believe that the Illinois delegation will ignore it.

As the national convention approaches it becomes apparent that the platform it writes may be even more important than the candidate it names. If it is to furnish the people with the leadership they are seeking, the Republican party must not waver from the keynote struck at Springfield. In its platform and in the stand of its candidate it must present itself as the peace party. Illinois' delegates go to Philadelphia with clear and explicit instructions on this point, and the Republican voters of the state will not tolerate any intrigues to weaken or tamper with those instructions.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Before last week the stock market followed closely the fortunes of the allies. It went down on allied losses, and went up when there was some development which seemed to affect the Germans adversely. Thus there was a brisk rally following the invasion of Scandinavia because of the great certainty expressed by British leaders that Hitler had made a strategic blunder and would be driven out of Norway speedily. When the allies found that they had made a miscalculation and gave up an attempt to retake central and southern Norway the market collapsed.

The launching of the blitzkrieg against Holland and Belgium was at first taken complacently by the market. But when the Nazis succeeded in reducing Holland quickly, stock resistance points were violated. When King Leopold surrendered the Belgian army, trapping the British expeditionary force and some French troops in Flanders, security prices fell out of bed.

Last week the allies suffered their worst losses, but the market didn't respond as its performance previously would have suggested. As the Weygand army was forced back toward Paris in a series of 10 miles a day retreats, prices held firm.

At noon over the radio on June 10 Mussolini made his declaration of war. Stocks went down for a few minutes, but rallied quickly, closing the day with a net gain. Early Friday, before the market opened, the surrender of Paris was announced. Again there was a brief relapse followed by a vigorous recovery. Early Saturday reports were current that France was about to negotiate a separate peace, but stocks at the close were on the average $1.09 higher than the day before and at the best level since May 17.

Clearly the stock market is responding to new influences. Instead of taking its cue from what is happening in Europe, it is being influenced by what is happening in the United States. It is taking account of the immediate effects upon American industries of the expenditure of the 5 billion dollars appropriated for rearmament, and of the prospect that the 5 billion will be increased.

The steel industry has so far been most affected. Orders for steel have poured in so fast that operations are steadily being pushed to the maximum and a plan for rationing steel consumers has been worked out. This is not attributable wholly to our own preparedness program. Another cause of the steel boom is the loss by the allies of a great part of the industrial capacity of France in and around Paris, and the decision of the British to buy anything anywhere that might be useful in stopping the Germans.

The aviations, regarded by many as the prime war stocks, fared far worse that the average last week. The war is too much for them and the government won't depend upon them but looks to the automobile concerns to supply the swarms of planes urgently needed for our defense and by the allies, who have been promised everything but troops. Mass production of planes is called for. And this means Ford, General Motors, and Chrysler and not Douglas, Curtis, Martin, and Lockheed. Chrysler and General Motors were among the leaders in last week's rise, and the aviation stocks were generally lower.

The comparatively modest preparations for war by the British in recent years have been credited with a large measure of responsibility for the high level of business maintained there for several years just before the war. If we are to arm on the grand scale now contemplated we shall most certainly have a war prosperity, tho it may be a prosperity we shall long regret. Such reflections as these and the feeling that the end result might be inflation made people willing to bid up for stocks last week when the fighting in Europe reached a climax.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

THE TANKS ARE COMING.

Since the war news and war talk is obsessed by the subject of tanks, listen to this:

In 1909 a British army officer named Ernest Dunlop Swinton, then an instructor in the military academy at Woolwich, published a book of short stories called "The Green Curve," under the pseudonym of Ole-Luk-Oie. These were tales of scientific warfare in the future, and they displayed a brilliant imagination. We read them, and said, "Better than H. G. Wells."

When the world war began Swinton was sent to France as official military correspondent. On Oct. 20, 1914, he submitted to the secretary of the committee for imperial defense a plan for developing an armored assault weapon out of tractor machines. Thus he became the father of the modern juggernaut of war. A literary imagination, combined with proficiency in military engineering, turned the trick.

* * *

The tank was England's secret weapon. Even the word "tank" was camouflage. The first experimental machine, called "Little Willie," was unsatisfactory; but its successor, called "Big Willie" or "Mother," passed all tests on Feb. 2, 1916. . . . When the English began to manufacture tanks in quantity they were of two types, called "male" and "female," and were supposed to fight side by side.

* * *

The first tank attack was on Sept. 15, 1916, in an advance between the Somme and the Ancre. It was a small affair of 49 machines, and only a moderate success. The first great attack and complete success was at Cambrai, Nov. 20, 1916.

* * *

The Germans woke up slowly, and had a few heavy tanks, which usually got captured because of their unwieldiness, in action by 1918.

Straightening Out the Swastikas.

I take issue with the identification of the emblem of the Nazi régime as a swastika in your column [June 11] and elsewhere. A scholar in the ancient Scandinavian languages recently pointed out to me that the Nazi emblem is not a swastika, but a more significant pagan symbol, Thor's hammer, the character which occurs on the earliest runic stones. You will note that the arms cross at right angles to each other and are of equal length, as in the swastika, but the outer branches form angles slightly less than right angles with the arms, resembling a streak of lightning, Thor being the god of thunder. These outer branches are turned in a clockwise direction in the former and in a counter clockwise direction in the latter.

The hammer of Thor was the holy sign of the ancient northern religion, and Thor was the favorite deity of these ancient pagans, defender of the earth, the heavens, and the gods. The adoption of Thor's hammer as their symbol was logical, in view of the Nazi effort to return to ancient Teutonic paganism. Naomi Fleming.

[And when things run counter clockwise in ancient symbols, it's powerful magic and "bad medicine."]

PRAYER OF FRANCE.

Mother of the crucified,
Let thy flood of pity flow
For the wounded; all who died;
For the hearts now crushed with woe.

Ghastly din assails our ears;
Calm the children's terror cries;
Holy Mother, hush their fears—
Hell has rained from out the skies.

Mother of the crucified,
You who drank the dregs of woe,
Pray forgiveness . . . terrors ride,
All war's agony we know.

Sainte Marie, tho blood must spill,
Pray that devastations cease;
Intercede for those who kill;
Pray for mercy, pardon, peace.

Another Version of the Sandwich Story.

The comments of Shandy Gaff [June 10] on the illustrious earl of Sandwich are all right as far as they go, but he omits the information that the earl is reputed to have been playing the royal and ancient game of chess!

The stakes may have been high or low—it matters not. No true chess addict would be able to remember what the stakes might or might not be while enjoying the thrill that comes with a successful sally in this wild warfare in which the goddess of chance takes no part.

The tradition, as handed down in our chess playing family, was that the earl, being importuned by his worried servants not to neglect nourishment longer, growled to them to put meat between pieces of bread so that he might eat without taking his eyes off the board. This comment, altho Greek to nonplayers, will be heartily understood by the rising swarms of devotees who see in the great old game a new birth that threatens the reign of contract amongst the élite.

Chess Hound of Chicago Beach.

[He probably said, "Mate," and the servant, who was an Irishman, brought him some meat, between pieces of bread.]

The most favorable prospect for the allies is the possibility that Hitler may gloat himself into a stroke of apoplexy. CHARLES COLLINS.

VACATION DOING OR UNDOING.

VACATION expeditions and automobile treks are now the order of the day. The pity of it all is that so many will return fatigued almost to exhaustion—demanding a rest period of several weeks for recuperation. We want to see everything and do everything in such a hurly-burly of effort that the muscles, heart, and nerves cannot withstand the strain. If we are off on a 1,500 mile jaunt, we determine to arrive at the designated destination in three days. Otherwise—so we believe—we will miss half the fun.

It goes without saying that holidays should be restoratives—not destroyers. Those who race their cars along the countryside at the speed of a streamliner wonder why they fail to enjoy the scenery. In a frenzy to "get there" they drive until 10 or 11 o'clock at night, put up at a second rate hostelry, toss sleeplessly on bumpy beds, and eat indifferent foods. Then come digestive upsets and headaches and many reach "journey's end" more dead than alive. For health's and the family's sake the trip should be leisurely and every sacrifice made to comfort. There is so much to be seen—and nature is so lavish with her paint brush—that there is no justification for dashing along country lanes in a hazy blur.

Considerable caution must be exercised in selecting what we put in our stomachs. Drinking water comes first, as all sources may not be safe. It does no harm to inquire. When in doubt, a thermos bottle or two will furnish a supply, or bottled water—even at some slight expense—may be used. It is far cheaper than a bout with some intestinal infection or possibly typhoid fever. If one is on a long tour—visiting several states—vaccination against typhoid is advised. It is almost 100 per cent protective and—particularly in dry seasons—may be essential.

We must recall also that ice may well be questioned, as freezing will not kill all the noxious germs. If sandwiches are taken along for consumption en route they should be wrapped in oil paper or cellophane to keep out dust and insects.

But where shall we go? First of all, select the spot with great care, and the recommendation of one with experience may be depended upon. On the other hand, gaudy circulars are not always reliable. Clean food, freedom from insects, with plenty of opportunity for outdoor life are all desirable. Make certain, also, that clothing is adequate, as sudden changes in temperature may find one quite unprepared. If you are expecting to do much walking or hiking, loose rather than snugly fitting shoes should be on hand. It is wiser to pay just a little more for your accommodations and be sure of the sanitary preparation of your edibles than to encounter illness.

Travel sickness is common and speed is not the cause. It is the rocking motion that is so likely to prove annoying. If the tendency appears, heavy meals must be omitted—substituting light but frequent snacks. Diluted ginger ale will be helpful. If one is dizzy and nauseated, the remedy par excellence is to go to bed. Deep, slow breathing is also of value. The bowels must be kept open with plenty of fruits, and a tablespoonful of glucose in a half glass of orange juice will prove beneficial. One may with advantage avoid fats during the entire interval.

If we really expect to replenish our stores of energy the chief objective is restful slumber. Hot, poorly ventilated rooms will ruin any one's sojourn. I often wonder at the fortitude of those who leave comfortable quarters at home only to suffer with complacency all sorts of inconveniences. There must be something in the psychology of getting away from one's fireside that permits the body to endure—without complaining—surroundings that could not be withstood under other circumstances.

Let's make sure that both the going and the returning are interesting and that only activities which the system can withstand are indulged in.

HEADACHE IN CHILD.

C. B. S. writes: My 10 year old niece complains of headache quite frequently. When she is playing or going to a place of amusement she never mentions it, but when she has to do her lessons, she gets one. Several physicians have examined her and found nothing wrong.

REPLY.

The chances are that this is a habit rather than an actual symptom. A great many people find refuge in illness when faced with tasks they dislike. If a skilled physician has found no demonstrable disease, discipline and retraining will be required.

PENETRATING ULCER.

P. C. writes: What is a penetrating ulcer? Is operation necessary?

REPLY.

One that is becoming deeper constantly—with a tendency to perforate, allowing the escape of the stomach contents into the abdominal cavity. If these lesions do not heal under good medical treatment, surgery may be indicated. Should rupture occur, an emergency is presented and the necessary operation performed without delay.

SUGAR.

R. N. A. writes: Can one leave sugar out of the diet entirely without bad results?

REPLY.

Yes. An excellent plan for one who is overweight.

A NEW ORDER OF THINGS.

Chicago, June 14.—After the holocaust, when things become calm again, man will immediately start to restore the ruins in the same manner as they were built before. I think it would be well to start a new order of things. Why not build underground homes with modern improvements? With air conditioning, electric lights and plumbing, one should be able to live rather comfortably.

Would it not be an experience to fly over a country where one could not find homes, beautiful cathedrals and other buildings, which later become targets for bloodthirsty men, but in their stead would find fragrant roses defying the steel monsters with their motto: "You can mow us down this spring, but next spring we shall burst forth with the same beauty and glory."

It would seem that the only safe place for men to build their homes in the future is in the bowels of the earth and cover their roofs with roses. A. C. K.

LINCOLN'S WARNING.

Chicago, June 13.—While attending graduating exercises at the Lincoln Memorial university at Harrogate, Tenn., last week, I saw hanging on the wall in the lobby of the auditorium, "Lincoln's Warning." In part it said:

"At what point shall we expect the approach of danger? By what means shall we fortify? Shall we expect some trans-Atlantic military giant to step the ocean and crush us at a blow? Never. All the armies of Europe, Asia and Africa combined with all the treasure of the earth in their military chest, with a Bonaparte for a commander, could not by force take a drink from the Ohio or make a track in the Blue Ridge in a trail of a thousand years.

"At what point, then, is the approach to danger to be expected? I answer, if it ever reaches us, it must spring up among us; it cannot come from abroad. If destruction be our lot, we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a nation of free men, we must live together all time or die by suicide."

H. A. DE VRY,
President De Vry Corporation.

UNCLE SAM: HARD TASKMASTER.

Chicago, June 13.—With all the noise the New Deal makes about unfair hours and labor conditions, the President should investigate his own household. Many bureau heads are demanding that employés under them work 45 to over 50 hours a week.

The Public Buildings administration has about 300 engineers in the field supervising contract work, and the Washington office piles up their work and gives them so much to do that a majority of the men are forced to work 10, 12 and 14 hours a day to keep up to date.

Why cannot the government do business on a fair and square basis the same as they are demanding of the private business man? WIFE OF ONE OF THEM.

STILL ON THE SCHEDULE.

Chicago, June 14.—From many people I hear that if the country should become involved in war soon there would be no national election in November. I hope they are mistaken, as I would hate to pass up an opportunity to vote the present administration out of office. I am under the impression an election is held for President every four years regardless of world conditions. I will appreciate your answer. A REPUBLICAN.

RIGHT SORT OF A ROOKIE.

Chicago, June 14.—I saw a rookie policeman take a cripple off the bus at Jackson boulevard and State street and help him into the store. I was there about 15 minutes when a blind colored girl came along. He read a card she gave him and then took her into the Lytton building and turned her over to the elevator starter. His star is No. 304. HARR HARRIS.

CAN YOU MILK A COW?

Chicago, June 14.—The Agricultural club of Chicago wants to know how many Chicagoans can milk a cow. Our program committee has decided that the quickest way to find out is to hold a contest. Therefore plans have been made to conduct such a contest at noon next Wednesday, June 19, in the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman, when our guest of honor, will be a famous dairy cow, which has been asked to coöperate with us in taking this census and helping us find the city's four best milkers. The contest is open to men and women over 16 years of age who have registered with the Agricultural club. Cash prizes will be awarded the winners.

The contest judges will be: Herman Steen, president of the club; A. H. Lauterbach, general manager, Pure Milk association; and C. F. Deysearoth, secretary of the Milk Foundation.

Applicants are requested to write or phone me at the Agricultural club, Hotel La Salle, room 1845, telephone Franklin 0700, and give me details regarding their milking ability and any other information that may help them qualify.

A. E. ALBAUGH,
Executive Secretary, Agricultural Club of Chicago.

WHAT G. O. P. SHOULD DO.

Chicago, June 13.—I was impressed with the Tribune editorial "Republicans and the War." Just as surely as Roosevelt wants a war he also want a third term. I have the banner Republican precinct of the state and am active in Republican politics. I am amazed that so many Republicans think Roosevelt will not seek a third term and that if he does he will be completely repudiated by the voters of his own party. I can't read the signs that way.

In accord with the editorial, I believe the Republican party should avoid equivocal statement on the war question. We should rise or fall on the flat statement that if the Republican party is returned to power, America will not engage in the European war. Our delegates to the Philadelphia convention should be instructed to oppose candidates who favor intervention. R. A. K.

ELIGIBLE FOR THE RODEO.

Chicago, June 12.—Purely as a matter of civic pride, the passengers in Chicago motor coach No. 228 last Saturday night would like to enter the driver in the Belle Fourche [S. D.] annual roundup and rodeo. We feel certain that he and a team of fellow motor coach drivers could capture all bronco busting events. H. M.

MUST THE STATUES GO?

Oak Park, Ill., June 13.—I see by the papers that the city of Rome [Ga.] has removed the replica of the bronze group of the "She-Wolf Feeding Romulus and Remus," a gift of Mussolini. I hope this is not contagious, else we will have to do a lot of removing and will be minus statues and artistic monuments.

By the Georgia logic all monuments or tablets to Columbus, Venazano, Tonti, Vico, Beltrami, Garibaldi, Verdi, Cabot, as well as those of many Jesuit missionaries who helped develop and settle this country, will have to come down for but one reason, and that is of having been Italians.

Then as to Germany, think of Humboldt, Goethe, Schiller, Beethoven, Wagner, and many others. I do not cherish the idea of our parks and squares being left with nothing but pedestals [if these would be left]. They might look too much like cemeteries.

Some one should get us back on the road to sanity. J. SORAVIA.

THE COLORED GIRL'S SNUB.

Chicago, June 13.—When Rubinoff and his commercialized violin were snubbing the colored girl violinist at the Morgan Park High school assembly, one wonders why the concertmaster and school authorities failed to protect the girl's rights. MRS. K. J.

Chicago, June 13.—I've never written to your column before, but I am so burned up over the incident related in a letter about Rubinoff not allowing the colored girl violinist to be in the picture with him that I have to blow off steam. I attended Morgan Park High a few years ago, and recently was glad to read of the students getting to hear Rubinoff. Now I'm sorry that the school welcomed any one so snobbish. REAL AMERICAN.

[Numerous other protests against the snub of the girl violinist have been received by THE TRIBUNE.]

SALVATION ARMY WORKERS SEND THANKS.

Chicago, June 14.—The members of the women's division appreciate sincerely the splendid coöperation your newspaper gave us for Doughnut day, and have asked me to extend thanks to you.

We feel that, in view of the war news, we fared extremely well on publicity thru the kindly assistance of our good friends on the Chicago press.

ARREST FOR THEFT.

Park Ridge, Ill., June 12 [Legal Friend of the People].—If a party took a 10 cent article in a store and the owner saw him, took him into a back room and kept him there until he got money or a promise to come back on a certain date. I thought the law took care of such cases and not the owner. E. P.

Illinois Revised Statutes, chapter 38, section 657, says: "An arrest may be made . . . by a private person without a warrant for a criminal offense committed . . . in his presence." The term "criminal offence" includes misdemeanors as well as felonies. People vs. Scalisi, 324, Ill. 131.

The law does not, however, authorize his using the threat of prosecution merely to collect the civil debt.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TO LOCATE OWNER.

Chicago, June 12 [Legal Friend of the People].—There is a house on Fletcher street, Chicago, which is not occupied and is nailed shut.

1. How can I get in contact with the owner or the party who took it over? The people on Fletcher street tell us they do not know who owns it.
2. They say the city took it.
3. We are interested in renting or even buying the house. R. W.

1. You can look up the legal description at the city map department at the city hall and then look up the owner's name on the tract index at the recorder's office.
2. This does not seem likely, but it would do no harm to try a letter to the corporation counsel's office.
3. See 1.

TODAY IN HISTORY

June 17, 1775

First important battle of the revolution fought at Bunker Hill. Americans heard of British plans to occupy the hill, and on the 16th occupied it themselves with 1,200 men. On this date the British, between 2,000 and 3,000 strong, advanced up the face of the hill. The Americans held their fire until the British were almost upon them, then firing with great effectiveness. Altho the Americans were defeated, their courage stirred enthusiasm thruout the colonies.

BAGGIORE SCORES TRIUMPH IN W-G-N SYMPHONIC HOUR

BY BRUCE DENNIS.

Attilio Baggiore in his operatic career has scored successes in debuts in Rome, Genoa, Naples, and London. Last night he made another debut—on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour—with results that must have been as gratifying to Mr. Baggiore as they were pleasing to the listeners of W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Attilio Baggiore.

Teamed with Marion Claire, Chicago Opera company soprano, Baggiore appeared in duets from "Faust." He also sang Dix's familiar "The Trumpeter" as a solo. Henry Weber, directing the W-G-N symphony orchestra and W-G-N chorus, performed as expected, which is a way of saying the music was excellently played.

The speaker of the evening was Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, who warned America of the dangers of succumbing to war hysteria. [The text of Col. McCormick's address appears on page 1.]

The selections from "Faust" were happily chosen to give full play to the talents of both Miss Claire and Baggiore. They sang in English. Brett Morrison was the narrator.

Schubert Work Presented.

Miss Claire's first song was Claude Debussy's rhythmic, flowing "Beau Soir." With easy versatility she then made the transition from Debussy to Stephen Foster and, with the chorus, sang "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming." Later the soprano and chorus presented Franz Schubert's majestic "Omnipotence."

The orchestra was ready to make its own bid for the spotlight by the time Liszt's symphonic poem, "Les Preludes," was reached, and under Mr. Weber's energetic yet understanding baton the musicians achieved their goal. The musical selections were introduced and characterized by Announcer John Weigel. It was the eighth production of the Symphonic Hour series.

4 GO ON TRIAL TODAY ON JURY FIXING CHARGE

The trial of Attorney George M. Crane and three co-defendants charged with conspiracy to fix a jury is scheduled to start today before Judge James F. Fardy in the Criminal court. Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, said yesterday that Assistants Thomas Bugan, Gordon Nash, and Robert Wright will prosecute the case.

Crane and the others were indicted on charges of bribery and conspiracy to obstruct justice after Sam Orlando and Joseph Vinci, 11th ward Democratic politicians, were acquitted of election fraud charges last Dec. 20.

Those who face trial with Crane are Orlando, John Howe, former state highway policeman, and James M. Creed, former bailiff.

Seized on Forgery Charge as Result of Auto Crash

Oregon, Ill., June 16 [Special].—Sought for six months on a forgery charge, Fletcher E. Lewis was arrested yesterday by Sheriff James White after an auto in which he was riding struck another car two miles south of Byron. Wendell Aubry, driver of the car in which Lewis was a passenger, was fined and sent to jail for 10 days as a drunken driver.

INQUEST TODAY INTO SLAYING OF TWO HOODLUMS

Police of the Woodlawn station said yesterday there would be little evidence to offer a coroner's jury at an inquest today into the slaying of Michael J. McGovern and James McGlade. The bodies of the two men were found Friday night in an automobile in front of 58 East 69th street. They had been shot to death.

For some years the activities of McGovern and McGlade have been matters of police concern, and Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the homicide squad said their background offered many motives for the murder. He said they were henchmen of Danny Stanton, one of the leaders of the Nitti gang.

Stanton was named recently as one of the gangsters who controls labor unions, and he is said to be the owner of a string of handbooks on the south side. Many persons killed on the south side in recent years have been associated with Stanton, police said. It is planned to ask a continuance of the inquest, which will be started at 10 a. m. today in the county morgue.

WOMAN STRUCK DOWN BY CAR OF HIT-RUN DRIVER

Des Plaines Banker Held by Highway Police.

Miss Helen Orr, 40 years old, 2821 Prairie avenue, was in serious condition in Northwestern hospital, Des Plaines, yesterday after she was struck by an automobile which police said had been driven by Edwin H. Schulze, 40, vice president of the First National bank of Des Plaines.

Miss Orr was walking in Rand road near Elmhurst road, near Mount Prospect, when she was struck. The driver did not stop, but two witnesses took his license number and notified Des Plaines police, who turned the information over to Morton Grove county highway police. The highway police later seized Schulze at his home in Hawthorne lane, in Des Plaines.

Fender Reported Dented.

Schulze said he had not noticed striking any one. Police said the right fender of his automobile was dented, however, and that broken glass found where Miss Orr was struck fitted a broken headlamp on the car. Schulze was released on bail after being booked on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. He will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace Elmer J. Tone at Morton Grove Wednesday.

Orville Baumgardner, 35, of 130 Nuttal road, Riverside, a chauffeur, was killed and five other persons were injured, three seriously, when Baumgardner's car was struck by another automobile and hurled 300 feet at 55th street and Willow Springs road, Lyons township.

Seriously injured were Baumgardner's wife, Frances, 28; Clarence Ehl, 25, of 4316 Prescott avenue, and Mrs. Emma Altman, 40, also of the Prescott avenue address. All were passengers in Baumgardner's small coupé. The driver of the second car, Paul W. Boyer, 33, of Naperville, was not hurt, but his wife, Vera, 27, and their 5 year old daughter, Jacqueline Joy, were injured. All the injured were taken to Hinsdale sanitarium.

Driver Held for Inquest.

Boyer, an accountant for the Commonwealth Edison company, who was taking his family to Ohio for a vacation, told police he slowed but did not stop as he approached 55th street, where there is a stop sign for Willow Springs road traffic. He was held on a charge of involuntary manslaughter for the inquest today. Bond was fixed at $5,000.

A woman killed Saturday night in an accident involving two autos and a freight train at North avenue and Addison road, near Villa Park, DuPage county, was identified yesterday as Miss Grace Meuhring, 48, of 1006 Dakin street. She previously had been identified erroneously as Miss E. Hubbard of 2825 Palmer street. Mervin H. Hubbard of the Palmer street address was killed in the crash.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 380 persons had been killed in traffic accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 296 were killed in Chicago, where 10,028 were injured during the same period.

'IMPOSSIBLE' TRIP ENDED BY HOMEMADE ARK

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, June 16 (AP).—Paul Satko guided his homemade Ark of Juneau into Alaskan waters today, 56 days after leaving Tacoma, Wash., to find a new home for his wife and seven children.

On a 40 foot boat powered with a 14 year old automobile engine, the Satkos completed a voyage that experts and a Seattle court declared impossible. The decision was issued when Juvenile court authorities obtained an order to keep the children off the "unseaworthy" vessel. Sako, a jobless welder of Richmond, Va., and his family then sailed secretly.

Their log showed: A burned-out engine bearing, two groundings on bars, several anchorages forced by heavy weather, seasickness for the entire family.

Cook inlet is the Satkos' announced destination.

WIFE AND BABY SEE FATHER, 21, DROWN IN LAKE

A young father drowned yesterday in the lake off 39th street in sight of his wife and infant son as a coast guard crew was speeding to his rescue.

The victim was James Smith, 21 years old, 3144 Lowe avenue, a factory employé. With his wife, Ann, and their son, James Jr., 2 months old, he went to the lake front and put out alone in a new canoe which he recently had purchased.

Five hundred feet off shore the canoe was capsized by a wave. Smith clung to the craft and tried to paddle to shore. Meantime the Jackson park coast guard station was notified and a crew started to the rescue. The cold water numbed Smith and he sank 100 feet from shore, with the rescue crew only a few minutes away.

80 German Air Employes Discharged in Colombia

PANAMA, June 16.—Eighty German employés of the Avianca company, which replaced the former German controled air lines in Colombia's domestic air service, have been discharged, the newspaper Tiempo of Bogota asserted today. The Germans will be replaced by North Americans and some Colombians.

4 IN BANDIT GANG CAPTURED AFTER TAVERN SHOOTING

Bystander Wounded; Girls Quizzed About Fray.

William Watts, 22 years old, 1937 Monroe street, was shot and seriously wounded early yesterday in a quarrel behind a tavern at 2336 Madison street. Warren avenue police arrested four men for questioning and found the four had committed at least 30 recent holdups. One of the four is believed to have shot Watts.

Those held are Jack Finger, alias John Russell, 19, of 322 South Hermitage avenue; Thomas McNulty, 25, of 1923 Madison street; James Grenneau, 21, of 7341 Langley avenue, and Carleton Williams, 20, of 1448 Adams street.

Four Girls Quizzed.

Also being questioned as material witnesses were four girls, said to have been in the tavern at the start of the quarrel which led to the shooting. They are Elsie Kelly, 16, of 2425 Flournoy street; her aunt, Edna Murrell, 21, of the same address, and Margaret L. Kelly, 16, of 1854 Adams street, and Katheryn Clark, 19, of 224 South Honore street. The Kelly girls are not relatives.

As police reconstructed the shooting from stories of witnesses, the four men who are under arrest came into the Schooner inn at the Madison street address, accompanied by Miss Murrell. Later eight or nine other men came in and ordered the first four to leave.

A wrangle ensued and both groups went behind the tavern, where the shooting occurred. Watts, who said he knew none of the others, said he just happened to be behind the tavern. He was wounded in the abdomen.

Guns Found in Cars.

Detectives Cornelius Cronin and Patrick McNamara seized the four a few hours later in an automobile in front of McNulty's home. McNulty was armed and two loaded guns were found in the car. Detectives Lyons Kelleher and Joseph Sidlo took the girls into custody about the same time, taking Miss Clark and Margaret Kelly on the street and the other two in their homes.

Police said the four men readily admitted their holdup career. They had obtained $73 and four pints of liquor in a robbery of a liquor store at 1205 West 69th street a short time before the shooting, they said. Finger said he had fired a shot behind the tavern, but did not know it had struck any one.

John Adducl, 37 Harrison street, Oak Park, owner of the tavern, told police he did not knowingly permit minors in the tavern, and had not noticed the girls until after the shooting. The girls said they had been there on several occasions.

DAUGHTER ASKS HUNT IN CITY FOR MISSING INDIANAPOLIS WOMAN

A search in Chicago for Mrs. Mary Hallworth, 63 years old, who has been missing from her home at Indianapolis, Ind., since last Tuesday, was asked yesterday by her daughter, Miss Myrtle Hallworth. Hindsight and Foresight

By HOLGAR J. JOHNSON

President, Institute of Life Insurance

THE other day I had a caller—from the American Red Cross.

He left me with the feeling that I wanted to help sell the Red Cross to my friends. This particular charity should be especially appealing to life insurance men.

I think I know the reason—or one of the reasons. It is our job to help people find security for themselves and their dependents. We provide a cushion for the family catastrophes caused by the deaths of breadwinners—and by helpless old age.

The job of the Red Cross is to cushion the shock of great catastrophes caused by the intemperance of nature or the folly of man.

In life insurance a man earns his family security; he pays for it by doing without things he wants. But there is no security for sale at any price to the people whom the Red Cross helps. Whatever they have built up by careful planning, by long sacrifice, has been swept away.

I hope that people feel just a little of the same glow in paying their premiums that they feel in contributing to a great charity. They should.

And I wish that everybody, in giving to the Red Cross, could have something even more than a fine glow of generosity. A feeling that this, too, is an investment—for the basis of all true security is as much in the heart as in the pocketbook of mankind.

NOTE: In this regular Monday column, paid for at advertising rates, the Institute of Life Insurance has asked its president to discuss questions of interest to life insurance policyholders. Inquiries may be addressed to 60 East 42nd Street, New York City.

Song Encircles City as Forest Concerts Start

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

Chicago was encircled yesterday by a girdle of song.

In open, sunlit glades of three forest preserves on the south, west, and north sides, the first choral concerts of a summer series were presented simultaneously at the twilight hour. The concerts, which will be held on seven successive Sundays, are sponsored jointly by THE TRIBUNE and the Cook county forest preserve district in coöperation with outstanding choral groups thruout the city.

Wisps of clouds like white feathers escaped from a lady's bonnet were lazy in the cerulean sky, and a persistent, cheerful sun warmed the wooded areas as thousands of city dwellers came in cars, on bicycles, and on foot, equipped with lunch baskets, baseball bats, decks of cards, and guitars. Comfort was the keynote of their clothing.

As robed choristers took their places in the bandstands, boys left first base and old men forgot their pinochle. The women, an assorted group in aprons, slacks, and dignified afternoon attire with parasols, were the first to be seated at wooden benches around the bandstands.

For one hour, while beloved old melodies and stirring hymns, sung by trained voices, rivaled the constant twirping of sparrows and the rhythmic drumming of woodpeckers, strangers were friends. One woman at the Dan Ryan woods, who had quibbled earlier in the day with a neighboring picnic party over an advantageous table near the bandstand, suddenly reached over and laid a homemade cake on their cloth. J. Wesley Jones' 100 voiced Metropolitan church choir was singing the Negro spiritual "Been 'Buked and Scorned."

Scheduled programs in all three preserves were forgotten as wave on wave of demanding applause resounded thru the leafy amphitheaters. The choruses couldn't sing enough.

Seven thousand picnickers, representing some 20 different nationalities, joined at Dan Ryan woods in singing Irving Berlin's "God Bless America." A tall, elderly Scandinavian man in an impeccable gabardine suit and straw hat unashamedly took a handkerchief from his pocket and wiped his eyes.

The program as arranged and directed by Mr. Jones, who annually conducts the 1,000 voices of the Chicagoland Music Festival Negro spiritual chorus, was composed of traditional Negro songs and beloved melodies by Foster and Grey. John Burdette and his Deep River octet captured the enthusiasm of the crowd with "Old Man River" and a booming version of "Wagon Wheels." The master of ceremonies was David W. Kellum, a member of the Chicago Defender newspaper staff.

At Thatcher woods in River Forest a special outdoor amphitheater has been built for the concerts in an oval of elms, oaks, and maples. The Efficiency.

The comment frequently made these days that democracies are inefficient brings to mind the comment once made by Charles F. Kettering, vice president of General Motors. It was at the time of Lindbergh's flight to Paris. His wife, upon hearing the news of his arrival, commented, "How wonderful that he did it all alone."

"It would have been still more wonderful had he done it with a committee," said Mr. Kettering.

Radio Operator's Tale.

This tale has gone the rounds of radio operators around the world:

In a little town in Europe there lived a "ham"—a radio amateur whose keenest enjoyment was derived from daily contacts with another ham in a neighboring country. These daily conversations had lasted over a period of many years, and altho they had never seen each other they were really close friends. Each knew when the other's kids had measles, and on holidays, birthdays, and Christmas they always exchanged cards and gifts. Their little talks were always so friendly that hams thruout the world referred to them as Damon and Pythias.

* * *

The Four Horsemen rode again—their countries were at war. Their last QSO (contact) was short but heart moving. The two men reiterated their vows of friendship and promised to resume operation of their little stations as soon as it was all over.

Damon (let us call him that) was ordered to a machine gun squad on the fortified border facing the country of Pythias. He, by some chance, had also been assigned, after much fighting, to a machine gun squad. Neither was happy, neither had gone near a radio transmitter or receiver since the day they were mobilized, and both surreptitiously practiced the Morse code with any handy utensil.

* * *

It happened on one of those dark and gloomy nights when Damon was on duty in "No Man's Land." He had been ordered to keep keenly on the lookout. The enemy was, at all costs, to be kept from advancing. After several hours his mind went into a reverie. He was back in his little warm room at home, tapping out CQ (this station is open for communication). Suddenly in the dark night he thought he saw movement. Subconsciously his finger pressed the gun trigger in a hail of bullets that spelled the characters C and Q.

To his amazement he distinctly heard a burst from the enemy side, also with a machine gun, that answered his "call."

More in a spirit of bravado than anything else, he sent his call letters. Opposite him the machine gun spelled the call letters of his old friend! The conversation continued in machine gun bursts and the men signed with 73's (best regards).

The story has a sad ending.

Officers on both sides also understood Morse code and both operators were called to headquarters. Both tried to explain but it didn't work.

The two friends had never seen each other and never saw each other again. General headquarters summarily executed both of them for being spies and sending information to the enemy.

The Fate of the Darmenys

By Elizabeth York Miller

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

Knowing she has but a few months to live, Madge Darmeny, gathers her family about her so she can select the most deserving heir, unbeknown to them. She is a childless widow and Amelia Pennyfather, a distant cousin, has been living with her for years. Her nearest kin is her own niece, Leda, and the next in line are Frank and Geoffry, nephews of her husband. Leda is married to Frank, but in love with Geoffry. Eight year old Betsy is Frank's child by a former marriage and she and her step-mother dislike each other very much. Madge's secretary, Shirley Westall, is acting as governess for Betsy. On the pretense she has to retrench, Madge has her family come live with her on her large estate. She confides to her solicitor, Alfred Barnes, of her plans. He tells her of Geoffry's latest scrape. He gave a bad check for a diamond bracelet. Madge has always overlooked Geoffry's debts and escapades because he has been able to get around her with his charming ways, but when Leda shows up with a diamond bracelet, saying a girl friend gave it to her, Madge becomes suspicious of both Geoffry and Leda. Frank is an old friend of Shirley's father and one day while visiting him, Frank sees Shirley and realizes she reminds him of his first wife and that he loves Shirley. On his way home Betsy tells her father that Geoffry gave Leda the bracelet. Frank trails Leda and Geoffry to a friend's apartment and finds them in the midst of a drunken party. He orders Leda home, she refuses ,and Geoffry starts a fight, but Frank knocks him down and takes Leda home. Madge sees them come in and knows something is wrong. When Geoffry arrives later, Madge lectures him and tells him he should settle down. She suggests that he marry Shirley and he, playing up to his aunt, agrees. The next day he breaks a date with Leda and takes Shirley to the races. Leda persuades Frank to take her and Betsy to the races also. At the track, Betsy, publicly comments on Geoffry's neglect of Leda and, in a rage, Leda knocks the child down causing a concussion. Geoffry has tired of Leda and is becoming attracted to Shirley, but he tells Leda he is pretending his affection for Shirley to please his aunt. Amelia is eavesdropping on them when he tells her. He declares his love for Shirley and when she repulses him, he accuses her of being in love with Frank.

INSTALMENT XIX.

CONNIVING.

Shirley broke into a run to get away from Geoffry forgetting that he still had her bag.

Geoffry's face darkened with anger as he watched her tearing along the woodland path.

Shirley was too young and unsophisticated to hide her feelings successfully. To one of Geoffry Darmeny's deep discernment she had given herself completely away.

She was in love with Frank. It was Frank who had cut him out.

This altered everything.

If he had to move heaven and earth to accomplish it, he would make Leda stick to Frank. Unless she did so, Geoffry knew he had no hope whatsoever of winning Shirley Westall's love.

Who could help him in this? Aunt Madge, of course, if he got to her with his tale ahead of Amelia; and Amelia, if he got to her before she spilled the beans to Aunt Madge. It was a sort of vicious circle.

Geoffry, also, quickened his pace. He felt he hadn't a minute to lose. Luck was with him.

Aunt Madge had sent for Amelia to see about preparing a room for Alfred Barnes. It was neither pressing nor very important, since the maids were perfectly competent, but today was different from other days and the household was badly upset.

Shirley had gone down to the village, Hilda was with Betsy, and Leda did well to keep out of sight, in Mrs. Darmeny's opinion; but when Gibson told her that he couldn't find Miss Pennyfather, either, her patience gave out. So Frank, the only person who seemed to be handy, said he would try to find Amelia—and where and in what circumstances he found her, we already know.

When Geoffry got back he learned from Gibson that Miss Pennyfather was in the Daffodil room making up the bed in which Mr. Barnes was going to sleep.

As a matter of fact, Miss Pennyfather was doing nothing of the sort.

Geoffry discovered her sitting on the unmade bed surrounded by clean sheets and bedding, sniffing at a bottle of smelling salts. At sight of him her lips drew into a taut line and she half started to her feet. As well as she could, she hardened her heart toward him.

"Amelia, darling ——!"

"Don't think you can smooth me," she said defiantly.

"Now come—do you think it was very nice of you to eavesdrop?"

Amelia knew it wasn't very nice, but Geoffry couldn't put it across her that way, either. She just wouldn't look at him. That smile of his, showing those white teeth, every one of them his own; his steady dark gaze, and the whole big masculinity of him always had an overwhelming effect on Amelia's starved emotions.

Geoffry knew well enough that he could wheedle her, if he got her first. He sat down beside her and altho she pretended to screw away from him, he put his arm very firmly about her waist.

"I know you're thinking hard things of me," he said sadly. "And of course I don't blame you."

"You ought to be ashamed of yourselves, you and Leda both. What Madge will have to say about it, I can hardly imagine."

"Melia, darling—she won't say anything, because you're not going to tell her. Leda is doing her best to give me a bad time. She's got me sweating ——."

"Don't try to tell me—I heard what you and she said. You talked about getting enough money together so you could elope. Do you want to kill your Auntie Madge?"

"You got it all wrong. For heaven's sake, old darling, don't you see that the woman's got me absolutely in a corner? I was trying to play for time. Only a month—but that would be something. Anything can happen in a month."

Amelia was secretly triumphant. Her new found sense of power was going to her head.

"I give you my solemn word of honor, Amelia, that I have no more idea of eloping with Leda than I have with ——" Geoffry broke off short of saying "with you," and changed it to, "than I have with Aunt Madge."

Curiously enough, as we know, that was very nearly true, and his words rang with conviction.

"Leda's dynamite," he went on. "O, I grant you, we've been carrying on a little flirtation. But she took it more seriously than I had any idea. Today she's all strung up because of what she did to Betsy. It was pure jealousy, of course. She's jealous of Shirley, and Betsy said something that set her off."

Miss Pennyfather stiffened.

"That scheming hussy, Shirley Westall! She's after you, too. I wish I knew what Madge sees in her."

"I wish I did, too," Geoffry said with a sigh.

Amelia twisted her neck to see if he was in earnest, but his face told her nothing.

"You're mistaken if you think Shirley's interested in me." He kissed Amelia very lightly on the lips. "She's only using me for a blind, old dear. She . . . and Frank."

This was something new to her; as, indeed, it was to Geoffry himself.

"If you don't believe me, just keep your eyes open," he added. "And—if you love me, Amelia—keep your mouth shut."

"I'll keep my eyes open," she warned him grimly, but made no promise as to what she would do with her mouth.

Geoffry went on in a musing, dreamy tone.

"I'm tired of the whole kit and boiling of women," he said. "Of course poor Aunt Madge has got to leave us some day, and I don't mean I'm tired of her or of you, 'Melia. You're both in a class by yourselves. I wish I knew for certain if Beechbourne was coming to me. I can think of nothing more satisfying, 'Melia darling, than Beechbourne with just you and me living out our days peacefully together here. I can sort of see you, Melia, in poor Aunt Madge's chair, with your knitting—quiet, yet companionable. I'd have my books and dogs and the horses. What could a fellow ask for better than that? Women plague me to death, my dear, and that's a fact."

Amelia lifted a skinny hand and brushed back a lock of dark hair that had straggled down over his forehead.

"It's because you're so attractive," she murmured. "They just can't leave you alone . . . Geoffry, I'll find out about Madge's will. I'm almost certain she's left you Beechbourne and most of the money, but of course nobody knows for sure."

Geoffry sighed.

"I'd like to know. But I expect, Amelia, you've been thinking I'm not worthy of such a great trust."

"You know how fond I've always been of you, Geoffry."

"Yes, I know. And I haven't deserved that either."

"You poor boy! How can you help it if women run after you. Leda's shameless—driving you into a corner like that. And when Madge learns about Frank and Shirley, it'll be the end of that hussy, too."

"Keep my name out of it," Geoffry said, with a note of austerity in his voice.

He had Amelia Pennyfather where he wanted her.

The pall that hung over Beechbourne Park lifted a little that evening after dinner when Betsy Darmeny recovered consciouness.

The doctor had warned them that it might not be for several days, but around 9 o'clock as Shirley Westall sat beside her bed the child opened her eyes and spoke.

"Can I have a drink of water?" she asked. Then she looked bewildered. "What time is it, Shirley? And why does my head feel so funny? It's singing—just like a top."

Shirley called to Frank, who was in the day nursery adjoining, and he came quickly.

Whatever was said to Betsy must be left to Frank.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: In the Flesh

Dresses in Dull Black Smarten Up Wardrobes

BY REA SEEGER.

Come any summer and the dull black dresses arrive to give the pastels and whites a good race for fashion supremacy! There seems to be something serenely comforting to the eye and spirit in these black beauties, something that assures a smooth, cool look despite torrid swoops of temperature.

All of them are cut with Spartan simplicity with a slim silhouette, and trimming details reduced to nothing at all. Fullness is introduced under bands, necklines are soft and high, sleeves end just above the elbow and belts are the unobtrusive type that tie or snap neatly. Skirts are short and flared, the flare gained with subtle fullness or gores. It's true they sound rather naive. They do look it off the figure; on, they're miracles of subtlety.

Thin silk crêpe, thinner clinging silk jerseys, novelty crêpes that drape exquisitely, such old fashioned materials as China silk, shantung, and suede textures or weaves are ideal summer thin fabrics for dull black dresses to wear all day for town and afternoon parties. Background dresses such as these are warn with plaster white jewelry, the less the better, with black sandals or street pumps, with bamboo colored straw turbans, and matching colored fabric gloves. If you look sharply you can also find bamboo colored straw bags to complete the accessory mixing.

Huge floppy cartwheels of linen or straw in flattering black or pale beige or the golden straw shade are toppers to dramatize the studied simplicity of these high fashion dull black clothes.

Small straw turbans twisted and knotted with the same skill as thick silks or jerseys are new this summer. These are cool and smart, comparing most fashionably with the lure of dull black or plaster white turbans of material. See the new showings of dull black dresses for summer street wear if you crave at least one sophisticated costume to accent with unusual accessories.

CONSTIPATION CAN COME FROM A BAD-ACTING LIVER

When the liver gets stubborn, as it often does in temporary constipation, you need something more than ordinary laxative aid. Beechams Pills, besides being a purely vegetable laxative that helps produce a pleasant, thorough movement, also helps stimulate the flow of bile from the liver. It is this bile that acts on intestinal wastes and helps bring real relief from irregular elimination. Buy Beechams Pills at your druggist's—10¢, 25¢, 50¢.

I've heard women remark that fresh pineapple takes more preparation time than it's worth. This shouldn't be true if the cook is armed with a sharp knife, and slices the pineapple thickly before attempting to peel it. Fresh pineapple cut into thin slices and sugared is juicy and flavorful. It makes a good breakfast fruit, luncheon dessert, or dinner appetizer. And it may be glorified in pie or other dessert if your menu requires glorification.

A simple glorification is this: Pour a little sweet wine over the prepared and sugared pineapple and chill for several hours. Serve in sherbet glasses with plain cookies.

Fresh Pineapple Shortcake.

[Serves six.]
2 cups sifted flour
5 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup butter or other shortening
¾ cup milk [approximately]
Soft butter
2 cups shredded, sweetened fresh pineapple
Whipped cream

Mix and sift dry ingredients and cut in shortening with pastry blender. Stir in milk to make a soft dough. A little more may be needed. Turn dough out on lightly floured board and knead gently for 30 seconds. Divide in two parts. Pat one part into a buttered cake pan. Spread with soft butter and top with the other part of the dough, patted out to the same size. Bake at 450 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Cut warm shortcake in squares, lift out to serving plates, and split. Fill and top each serving with the sweetened pineapple. Top with whipped cream.

Fresh Pineapple Cream Pie.

1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup scalded milk
¾ cup pineapple juice
2 cups fresh cooked pineapple
1 tablespoon butter
3 eggs, separated
1 baked pie shell

Mix flour, sugar, and salt and add to the scalded milk. Add pineapple juice drained from the fruit after cooking it gently for 10 minutes. Cook and stir over hot water until the mixture is thick and smooth. Cook 10 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Beat egg yolks and pour a little of the hot mixture over them, stirring vigorously. Return the combination to the double boiler and cook and stir for two minutes longer. Remove from heat and add drained, finely cut pineapple and butter. Cool. Fill baked pie shell. Top with meringue made by beating egg whites stiff and adding six tablespoons sugar gradually, beating until sugar is dissolved. Bake at 350 degrees until meringue has browned.

Or leave off the meringue and top this pie with sweetened whipped cream, slightly flavored with vanilla.

June 17, 1940.

Universal Day—You are your own best counsel today. Take your own advice. Take the initiative.

Year Ahead—This is the best year for changes, moves, making new contacts, seeking new outlets for all those born on this date or for any one having a 1-year.

Names—Altho Alice is domestic in her tastes and interests, she is not the type of Alice described in the old song "Ben Bolt." One is more likely to "tremble" at her frown than the other way about for she often is quick on the trigger with both temper and humor. She likes to express herself thru her sensations which makes her creative and fond of good living.

Colors Must Be Selected with Caution

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Color, properly used, can cast a spell which not only adds enchantment to a woman's beauty, but also does something to uplift the spirit.

It's the wise woman, tho, who succumbs to the color urge discriminately. If she has selected her new number with an eye to whether the shade is most becoming to her particular type of beauty, she also will select her accessories with the same carefully thought out plan. That plan must include makeup.

There is no doubt about it. Certain dress colors either add glow to the skin, or drain it of much of its natural color. The thing to keep in mind, aside from this fact, is that cosmetic shades should be matched to the underlying skin tones, if you want to play safe. One school of thought contends that cosmetic shades can be matched to the reflection cast on the skin by certain dress shades. But the safe thing is to match them to the underlying skin tones.

To illustrate what I mean, select a golden red, blue red, and red red lipstick. Mark each, side by side, on your wrist. Which matches your skin best? If it's the blue red, that is your shade, and you should select your clothes accordingly — shades which have a blue cast.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

Heavy creams, like heavy perfumes, aren't nearly as pleasant in summer as they are when the weather is cold. This is the ideal season for use of three preparations designed by a great beauty house for summer treatment. The three preparations are described as "mild," which means that they're lighter than those the thin skinned women need in winter.

First, there is a mild cleansing cream. It feels cool to the skin and leaves no residue of oil on the face. It's a quick cleanser, just rich enough to give the skin the light oiling it needs and to leave it soft and dewy but not greasy. That sticky sensation beneath your makeup, that makes you look twice as hot as you should on a warm day, is ruled out.

For use after the cream, if you like something mildly stimulating, there is a refreshing skin lotion. Pat it on; it isn't drying and it steps up the blooming look.

Then, because your skin needs lubrication because of the drying wind and the hot sun, use a softening cream. You needn't leave the skin cream on overnight; just coat your face with it while you're bathing or dressing. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Grieg Male chorus of 48 men in white trousers and shirts stood against the backdrop of a huge American flag. Six hundred men and women clustered around the bandstand, and thousands of others at their picnic baskets heard the concert over a loud speaker system.

One little woman turned eagerly to a stranger beside her. "Do you know," she volunteered, "I came 30 miles to hear this." With the vocabulary of a musician she chatted on about Grieg and Romberg and Handel, whose songs were part of the program, directed by Peter Olson.

Grimy little baseball players stopped to stare and stayed to listen as 30 boys, in surplices and cassocks, and 20 men of the St. Sebastian church choir mounted a bandstand in a meadow at Caldwell woods. The high, sweet soprano of the boys' voices gave added reverence to "Our Nation's Prayer," a poem by the Rev. Francis C. Young of Philomena church which has been set to music by Walter Blaufus, noted composer.

More than 500 persons listened to the program of hymns and sentimental ballads directed by the Rev. Joseph O. O'Donnell. They clustered on the hilltop behind the stand and overflowed the benches.

Throngs of picnickers will hear three more concerts next Sunday. The children's a cappella choir of Tabor Lutheran church will sing in Caldwell woods, Milwaukee and Devon avenues; the Harmony Choral club at Dan Ryan woods, 87th street and Western avenue, and the Æolian chorus at Thatcher woods.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Bagdad-on-the-Pacific.

Hollywood, Cal., June 16.—Charlie Chaplin's "The Dictator" will be released at the end of August. They say it is his funniest comedy. . . . Betty [Legs] Grable arrives today to take over the lead in "Down Argentine Way" that would have been played by Alice Faye. . . . Gene Tierney and Dick Watts running a temperature. It started on Broadway when she played in "The Male Animal."

Virginia Kraft with Fritz Feld. . . . Linda Darnell bending an ear to Frank Swann. . . . Casey Robinson's sister, Dorothy, will become Mrs. Robert Blees. . . . Jane Larkin monopolizing Dick Foran's time.

Six months ago David O. Selznick urged Sam Goldwyn and other producers to get free of all commitments, because of war threats to the industry. Nobody listened to Selznick. Today he is the only producer completely in the clear, as the result of getting rid of his studio. His only commitments, to Vivien Leigh, Ingrid Bergman, Joan Fontaine, and Director Hitchcock, are making money for him on a rental basis. He clears $2,500 a week on the Hitchcock loan-outs.

Meantime, his "Gone With the Wind" has grossed $14,000,000 and his "Rebecca" is cleaning up. So what? So, Selznick is going east for a two month vacation and won't resume production, or even read scripts, until next fall or winter.

Charlie Rogers is trying to get Irene Dunne to play the lead in his "Jane Addams of Hull House." . . . Billy Seeman flew out from New York to surprise Buddy De Sylva, arriving here today. . . . Mrs. Eddie Cantor and Rhea Gable both had tickets on that long shot at Hollywood Park which paid $146 for $2. . . . After all those insulting jibes at jitterbugs Artie Shaw returns to the air lanes with a band—for jitterbugs. . . . Movie stars, fearing that the war will end a lot of fat contracts, are looking for radio jobs at any figure in order to get fall sponsors. . . . Zorina and Ballanchine, according to their pals, are arranging a reconciliation.

Despite the presence of such redoubtable campaigners in the cast as Bette Davis and Charles Boyer, "All This and Heaven, Too" was "stolen" by 4 year old Richard Nichols. . . . Joe Schenck in from the east today. . . . Ex-Footballer Marshall Duffield is taking care of Mary Healy on the west coast, while Peter Hayes is squiring Duffield's honey, Wanda MacKaye, in the east. . . . Maureen O'Sullivan is going to Canada to visit her hubby, John Farrow. . . . Submarine menace will persuade Bing Crosby to cancel that projected trip to South America.

Good morning!

I should think Twentieth Century Fox would be right well pleased with the proof presented in "I Was an Adventuress" that Zorina can act as well as dance.

She is "different." Not beautiful—she has a delicate, elusive charm that is bewitching. And how she DOES wear clothes!

You see her, at the picture's beginning, as the feminine come-on for a pair of jewe lthieves. . . . Desormeaux, swollen bodied, pig-necked, is the master mind who plans the robberies. Polo, slimy, sickly, smiling [you know Peter Lorre, ugh!]—a border line case kleptomaniac, is his stooge.

Cleverly planned schemes work out just fine until that Mr. Richard Greene appears. When Tanya slaps his face [according to plot] he slaps her right back à la Cagney—and za grand passione flames into life betwixt them. . . . They marry.

A good man's love turns the bad little girl into an angel of sorts and her husband's faith in her enables the young wife to succeed finally in putting her former companions and their works out of her life.

Needless to say all this is not as easily accomplished as it sounds . . . for Tanya has been valuable to Desormeaux and he doesn't let her slip out of his life just—like—that! No indeed! But his evil machinations are retarded by the blunders [??] of Polo, who adores Tanya with doglike devotion and wants her to be happy at all costs.

Not a remarkable picture in any way, "I Was an Adventuress." However—you will remember it because of the arresting presence of the Lady of the Title Rôle.

There is one lengthy and lovely dancing episode in which Miss Zorina and company present the "Story of the Swan." [I think that's what they call it].

See you tomorrow.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

A declarer should consider himself fortunate indeed when he gets the opportunity to make a play that may gain a trick and, at worst, can lose nothing. That was the case in today's hand, but only one declarer out of seven in a duplicate game took advantage of the situation.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ 7
♦ K Q J 10 7 2

WEST
♠ 7
♥ Q 8 5 4
♦ 9 6 5 3

EAST
♠ 6 4 3 2
♥ J 9 2
♦ A 8 4

SOUTH
♠ A K J 10 9 8 5
♦ None
♣ J

The bidding varied greatly among the seven tables, but in every case South became the declarer at six spades. Typical bidding was as follows:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	3 spades	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
4 diamonds	Pass	4 no trump	Pass
5 clubs	Pass	6 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Those North-South teams that were using the Blackwood convention answered the four no trump bid with five diamonds to show one ace, but this, of course, did not affect the final contract.

Strange to say, the opening lead was the same at all tables, namely, a club thru North's second bid suit. At six tables the declarers apparently were satisfied to play for their contract and forget all about the extra trick. They won the opening lead in dummy and immediately led a heart in order to be able to ruff one heart with the spade queen. They then discarded on dummy's second club trick, after which they ruffed a diamond, drew trumps, cashed their remaining heart trick, and finally conceded a heart to the enemy.

As stated, only one declarer in the room realized that the hand was made to order for a free play for an extra trick. After winning the opening club lead in dummy this declarer made the obviously correct return of the diamond king. As it happened, East chose to cover, which, of course, was "duck soup" for the declarer. He ruffed, then cashed the heart ace and ruffed a low heart, after which he discarded one heart on the diamond queen and another on the club king. He then ruffed a club with a high trump, drew the outstanding trumps, and spread the hand.

It will be observed that absolutely no risk was involved in the lead of the diamond king thru East. If the latter did not have the ace, or failed to cover, South could, if he chose, ruff anyway, then ruff a heart, just as the other declarers had done. Or, if the diamond ace was not played on the king, declarer could merely discard a heart, secure in the fact that the spade queen would always be an entry to dummy and that, unless a miracle occurred, his two remaining hearts could be discarded on a diamond and a club. The pertinent point is that the lead of the diamond king risked nothing while creating the opportunity for an extra trick.

PACIFIC COAST TRACK STARS FACE BIG 9½ TONIGHT

FAR WEST TEAM HOLDS AN EDGE IN ANNUAL MEET

Cochran May Run in Two Events.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The track stars of the nation's two greatest collegiate athletic conferences will pass in review this evening at 7 o'clock, daylight saving time, in Dyche stadium, Evanston.

Roy Cochran.

The Pacific coast team, built around Southern California and currently seeking its ninth national collegiate track title in 13 years, is a prohibitive favorite to defeat the Western conference team.

Backing the Trojans are Stanford's Indians, who were beaten only by two points by Southern California in the coast title meet; Washington State, and the University of California at Los Angeles.

Seven Teams Represented.

Seven of the members of the Pacific coast conference are represented. The athletes have trained here since Friday. Bill Ellington, Stanford track coach, is in charge of the invading team which never has been defeated in this series.

While there is no hope that the Western conference can win, the Big 9½ athletes will make a fight in the track events which will surpass the competition in any previous meets.

The Pacific coast will win primarily because of an overwhelming superiority in the field. Indiana's Archie Harris, who set a Western conference record of 166 feet 5¼ inches in the discus last month and followed that with a record throw in the central collegiates, is the only middle westerner conceded an individual championship.

See Sweep for Coast.

The Pacific coast may sweep all three places in the javelin throw, the broad jump, and the pole vault. In addition to the 14 individual events, eight of them on the track, the conferences will compete in the quarter mile and mile relays. The Big 9½ hopes to win its first relay in four years in the quarter mile. The meet will be scored in the customary 5-3-1 manner.

The Western conference would have won the 440 yard relay in the meet in Berkeley, Cal., last year, but for the fact that Myron Piker, Northwestern's 100 yard champion, the leadoff man for the Big 9½, pulled a muscle. The Pacific coast team then was disqualified for illegal passing of the baton so that this relay was not scored at all in the team standings.

Cochran Back in Form.

Officials of the Western conference were cheered yesterday by the news that Roy Cochran, Indiana university's international hurdle champion, apparently was back in shape. Cochran won the Indiana A. A. U. quarter mile over the Butler university track, Indianapolis, in the fair time of 48 8-10 seconds.

Cochran was not pushed at all, and he reported to his coach, Billy Hayes, that the leg injured in the Big 9½ meet a month ago did not bother him. This was Cochran's first competitive finish since the Western conference 100 yard dash.

Cochran and Ralph Schwarzkopf, captain of the Michigan team, were the only Western conference athletes to win individual titles in the Berkeley meet. Schwarzkopf won the two mile run by going out in front of Dixie Garner of Washington State and making the pace. Whether Schwarzkopf can repeat that victory depends on his condition following

INDIANS DECIDE TO SPARE VITT'S SCALP AFTER ALL

Withdraw Charges in a Signed Statement.

Cleveland, O., June 16 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians laid down their arms tonight, their insurrection over. In a statement signed by all except three players, the team called off its rebellion against Manager Oscar Vitt.

"We the undersigned publicly declare to withdraw all statements referring to the resignation of Oscar Vitt," it said. "We feel this action is for the betterment of the Cleveland baseball club."

The statement was drafted and signed at a meeting held after the team's double victory over the Philadelphia Athletics this afternoon. Alva Bradley, club president to whom 12 players presented a demand for Vitt's resignation last Thursday, was present, but Vitt did not attend.

Incident Closed, Says Bradley.

One of the players not signing the statement—Outfielder Roy Weatherly—walked out of the meeting before it ended, but teammates said he was not among the group originally asking Vitt's ouster. The other two, Outfielder Jeff Heath and Catcher Henry Helf, are in Cleveland hospitals.

The players' agreement seemingly ended the strange baseball episode, Bradley's only comment being, "It's a closed matter now."

The players, thru a spokesman who asked his name be withheld, had decided to smooth the matter over, wipe the slate clean, and start all over again with everybody friends.

Players Are Sorry.

He asserted the 12 players directly involved in the protest Thursday now felt they had erred and that the team's success in the American league race this year depended on harmony.

The protest had been directed against Vitt's outspoken criticism of various members of his team, principally on the playing field. The insurgents asserted he ridiculed them and ruined their morale. The complainants included such key men as Pitchers Bob Feller, Mel Harder, and Al Milnar, First Baseman Hal Trosky and Catcher Rollie Hemsley.

Feller had summed up his criticism by asserting, "Sometimes it seems he'll [Vitt] drive us all nuts. Maybe it's his nervous condition."

Vitt himself admitted nervousness in the dugout, but asked, "What do the fellows want, a manager who doesn't care whether they win or lose?"

It was a complete day of triumph for Vitt. The crowd gave him a tremendous ovation when he appeared on the field during the games with the Athletics.

GODOY PUTS ON BRISK SHOW FOR CAMP VISITORS

Carmel, N. Y., June 16 [Special].—Arturo Godoy went thru a brisk workout today in preparation for his 15 round bout with Joe Louis, from whom he will seek to lift the world heavyweight championship on Thursday night in Yankee stadium.

Godoy boxed four rounds, two with James J. Johnson and two with Max Minnich. He impressed the crowd by the ease with which he handled his sparmates, and the more critical observers expressed satisfaction with his condition. He scaled 202 pounds after the drill, 1 pound less than he weighed for his first fight with Louis on Feb. 9.

LOUIS BOXES, TOO.

Greenwood Lake, N. Y., June 16 [Special].—Joe Louis boxed four rounds today, one with Emil Scholz, one with Joe O'Gatty, and two with George Nicholson.

The champion traded body punches in long rallies with his partners, and sent sharp left hooks to the head.

Louis will rest tomorrow and will box for the last time on Tuesday. He weighed 200 pounds at the end of today's drill.

Sarazen, Hagen to Play 36 Hole Benefit Match

Toledo, O., June 16 (AP).—A golf match between Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen over 36 holes was arranged tentatively today for the benefit of the Red Cross.

It is planned as part of a two day program in which Sarazen also will lead a group of 10 professionals into action against the Ryder cup team.

The matches, scheduled tentatively for July 13-14 at Detroit, result from a challenge by Sarazen, slightly irked at being left off the Ryder cup team.

Asserting he could select 10 professionals capable of giving the team a trouncing, he named his men and laid down the gauntlet to Hagen, who has captained all American Ryder cup squads. Hagen accepted. Soon thereafter Hagen decided to drop his rôle of nonplaying captain of the Ryder team, stepped up to Sarazen and said:

"Gene, now I'm challenging you. I'd like to play you in the 36 hole singles match."

The team match will consist of four four-ball matches Saturday, July 13, and eight singles matches the following day. The competitors:

RYDER CUP TEAM—Capt. Walter Hagen, Sam Snead, Byron Nelson, Ralph Guldahl, Dick Metz, Harold McSpaden, Henry Picard, Jimmy Hines, Vic Ghezzi, Horton Smith, and Paul Runyan.

THE CHALLENGERS—Capt. Gene Sarazen, Lawson Little, Craig Wood, Jimmy Demaret, Ed Oliver, Ben Hogan, Ed Dudley, Lloyd Mangrum, Tommy Armour, Jimmy Thomson, and Billy Burke.

GULDAHL, SNEAD WIN INVERNESS GOLF TOURNEY

Toledo, O., June 16 (AP).—Sam Snead of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., and Ralph Guldahl of Chicago won the $6,500 sixth annual Inverness invitational golf tournament today, clipping eight strokes off par to beat Ed Dudley and Billy Burke six up in the final round.

The winners, in taking first prize of $1,500 with a seven round score of plus 15 [the number of holes they finished up on their combined opponents] beat Jimmy Demaret and Dick Metz, who had a plus 12 for second and $1,000.

In addition, Demaret and Metz won $200 for shooting the most birdies, 49, in the 126 hole play, and another $200 for having the best score for the route, 449.

Demaret took first place among the nation's golf money winners. His winnings since Jan. 1 went up to $8,477 to pass Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., who was idle this week, and remained at $8,213.

Other scores: Harold [Jug] McSpaden and Lawson Little, plus 9, $800; Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta [defending champions], plus 1, $700 and an additional $200 for the best single round, 61, or 10 under par; Gene Sarazen and Clayton Heafner, minus 3, $600; Horton Smith and Jimmy Thomson, minus 6, $500, and Dudley-Burke and Walter Hagen-Byron Nelson, tied at minus 14, $350 each.

CUBS LOSE IN 11TH 5 TO 4, THEN PUT BEES TO ROUT, 9-1

Score Eight Runs in 6th; Passeau Yields 5 Hits.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass, June 16.—Altho the Cubs weren't especially artistic as fielders this afternoon they managed their affairs well enough to reach a reciprocal arrangement in their double header with the Bees. Under the heading of good, clean fun, the Chicagoans, by piling up five errors, finally succeeded in giving away the first game, 5 to 4, in 11 innings. Then, despite further leanings toward the blunder column, they earned an even break in the four game series by succeeding, 9 to 1, in the second game.

The fact that four errors in the second game didn't result in another jolt can be attributed to the pitching of Claude Passeau and a lack of pitching, as well as a few other items, in the Bee ensemble. Passeau, despite the pressure of miscues, featured his season's fifth victory with a sprinkling of five hits. But his problem, after being tough for five innings, was solved in the sixth when the Cubs, profiting by base hits, bashful Bee fielding, and aimless pitching by Lou Fette and George Barnicle, fashioned an eight run rally.

Hartnett Hits a Homer.

The Chicagoans, altho they wound up with only six hits after 11 innings of swinging against Joe [Lefty] Sullivan, the inevitable Dick Coffman and Bill Posedel in the first game, had the decision in their control at two different times. Manager Gabby Hartnett socked his season's first homer to give Bill Lee a 2 to 0 lead in the second inning and this lead survived until Lee wilted in the seventh. Not disturbed by this, the Cubs bounced back for a 4 to 3 edge in the eighth and that would have been enough if Billy Herman hadn't erred on the play that should have been the final putout.

After Lee's default in the seventh, Ken Raffensberger was summoned, but he lingered only until serving a pass in the ninth, a pass, which, with Herman's error, became the tying run under the régime of his successor, Vance Page. And Page was still present when the Cubs put on their big collapse in the 11th. Stan Hack fumbled Rabbit Warstler's roller and an instant later Eddie Miller, who had caused trouble with a double in the seventh, singled to left. Augie Galan booted the hit and Warstler scored from first.

FIRST GAME

The Cubs' first hit in the first half of the opening game showed up after one was out in the second, and altho it was slightly tainted it helped. Herman slapped a long fly to center and West was a bit fence shy, the ball dropping for a double. Galan clicked a hard liner to left, but Ross snared it close to the wall. Then Hartnett produced his homer for a 2 to 0 lead. Mattick followed with a single and it turned out to be the Cubs' last hit until the eighth.

The Bees' run off Lee in the third inning was due mainly to overambition on Hack's part after two were out. Just as Mattick was preparing to catch Sisti's pop that should have ended the inning, Hack rammed into the shortstop and there was no catch. Hack was given an error for interference, Sisti taking second and scoring a moment later on Moore's double to center.

Bees Go Into Lead.

The seventh inning blast which for a few minutes hung a beating on Lee's shoulders began with a single to right by West, who was bunted to second by Rowell. After Masi had fouled out, Miller doubled off the left center field fence and West scored the tying run. Miller hiked home on a single by Sullivan.

The Cubs' two run eighth opened with Russell, batting for Lee, fouling

LYONS BEATEN IN 12TH, 4 TO 3; KNOTT ROUTED

Leaders' Home Runs Win 2d, 14-5.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

A crowd of 26,210, which brought the total for the series to 71,149, yesterday saw the White Sox bow twice to the league leading Boston Red Sox, 4 to 3 in 12 innings and 14 to 5. The first game was a heartbreaker for Ted Lyons, and the second was a riotous affair in which Jimmy Foxx knocked his sixteenth homer of the year and eighth against the White Sox. Manager Joe Cronin banged two homers and Pitcher Jack Wilson knocked two in his string of four straight hits. The Red Sox scored in every inning of this game except the eighth and ninth and still managed to leave 12 runners on base.

Jack Wilson.

The sweep of the series gave the Sox a new home losing streak of five straight. This combined with nine losses in their first nine home games gives Jimmy Dykes' boys a record of 14 defeats in 19 games played this season in Comiskey park. The White Sox are now seven games under the .500 mark.

Lyons Deserves Better Break.

In the first game Lyons held the Red Sox to one scratch hit in seven innings, only one man reaching first before Ted Williams opened the eighth with a triple to become the first Boston run. An error by Eric McNair with two out in the ninth, combined with some subsequent alert base running by Williams, enabled the Red Sox to tie the score. Then, after two sad fadeouts by the White Sox in the 10th and 11th innings, Williams won the contest with a homer at the start of the 12th.

The second game included, besides the five aforesaid Boston homers, a triple and a double by Williams, a triple and three singles by Jim Tabor and nine other hits. Jack Knott was the least effective of three White Sox pitchers, tho there may be some question about that. Anyhow, Knott was the losing pitcher.

FIRST GAME

In the first game each team made one scratch single and otherwise did not get a man on first prior to the White Sox fifth inning, the session in which Moose Solters followed Luke Appling's single with his homer to get the excitement started.

The White Sox scored their third run before the Red Sox got their second runner to first base. Wright opened the seventh with a triple to left center and scored on Appling's fly to Finney.

It was in the eighth that Williams started the rampaging he produced in three instalments for eventual victory. He opened with a triple to left center, the second hit off Lyons, and scored on Cronin's single to center.

McNair, First Name Boob.

The tragic ninth started with Cramer drawing Lyons' only pass. Finney fouled to Tresh and Foxx was called out on strikes, his third strikeout of the game. Williams sent a grounder to McNair, who threw wide of Kuhel, Cramer reaching third and Williams second. McNair made a spectacular diving stop of Cronin's grounder near second, but instead of devoting his efforts to holding the Red Sox to one inadequate run, he

HISTORIAN WINS BEST OF BREED IN WAUKEGAN SHOW

Puppies, Old Favorites Score Victories.

Champion Hertzville Historian, sable and white collie from the Hertzville kennels of C. J. Cassleman and Thomas M. Halpin, Chicago breeders, last night was selected as the best dog in the Northbrook Kennel club dog show in the new Illinois National Guard armory in Waukegan. In three consecutive all-breed shows last summer he was selected as best dog of all breeds, defeating more than 1,000 pure breds in the three events.

Historian was exhibited again last November when he won the Chicago Collie club specialty in the Coliseum. Since then he has been retired while other Hertzville dogs campaigned. Yesterday's show was his first since November, and his victory made another brilliant addition to the Hertzville record.

Coast Track Stars, Big 9½ Meet Tonight

the illness which has kept him out of competition for nearly two months.

Cochran May Run Hurdles.

Cochran, it was reported yesterday, will compete in the 220 yard low hurdles in which event he was the defending champion in the Big 9½ this year, altho he could not take part in the finals.

Cochran may run the low hurdles against Lee Orr, Washington State's great quarter miler who won the Princeton invitational meet in the record time of 46 8-10 seconds. Orr, however, wishes to concentrate on his quarter mile battle with Michigan's Warren Breidenbach and his part in the mile relay. Decision on entry may not be made until this evening.

The parade of champions will include Clyde Jeffrey of Stanford, labeled the world's fastest runner; Ed Buxton, Wisconsin's half mile champion in the Big 9½; Campbell Kane, Indiana's mile champion, and Ed Smith of Washington, high hurdle champion.

Smith Tops Hurdlers.

These men are favorites in their listed events. However, Jeffrey's titles in the sprints will be disputed by Piker, Alan Smith of Michigan, and George Franck of Minnesota. Buxton meets Bill Dale of Washington State and Kerman Storli of Oregon, both of whom have registered faster times in competition this year. Kane probably will run the half mile, but seeking all possible points, he is expected to lead off in the mile. Kane has not been defeated in the mile this year.

Ed Smith is the class in the high hurdle field. The only field event in which the Western conference has a chance, other than the discus, is the high jump. Here Johnny Wilson of the Trojans, who narrowly missed a world record this spring at 6 feet 10 inches, faces Michigan's Don Canham, who has not been defeated in the current campaign. He won the Big 9½ at 6 feet 4¼ inches, but has made a better mark.

General admission tonight is $1. Reserved seats are $1.50, tax included, and children's tickets are 25 cents.

C. Y. O. Boxers Bearing Down for Hawaiians

With little more than three weeks left before the Hawaiian champions meet the 10 outstanding boxers of the C. Y. O. in Soldiers' field, Wednesday night, July 10, the C. Y. O. gymnasium, located at 31 East Congress street, is packed each day with boys working out.

Tolm O'Connell, boxing director of the C. Y. O., said that not since last winter when hundreds of boys were training for the annual C. Y. O. meet and the Golden Gloves tournament have there been as many lads in the C. Y. O. gym as there have been in the last two weeks.

Realizing that the competition will be keen for the show with the Hawaiian champions, the boys have opened training early, each hoping to be one of the contestants on the July 10 card.

The showing each boy makes in sparring sessions between now and the last week of June will determine whether he is to be among the group selected to go to the training camp, Renehan lodge, Round Lake, Ill., 40 miles northwest of Chicago.

Boys in eight weight classes, from flyweight to heavyweight, will be selected to go to training camp. During the 10 day stay in camp, the youngsters will be put thru daily sparring sessions and the 10 boys who show the most impressively will be selected by O'Connell and Paddy Kane, boxing coach of the C. Y. O., to oppose the Hawaiian champions.

REDS GET BREAKS TO WIN 2 GAMES FROM DODGERS

Frey Hits Lucky Home Run to End First, 1-0.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 16 (AP).—Cincinnati's Reds took a two game bite out of Brooklyn's National league lead this afternoon, beating the Dodgers, 1 to 0 and 5 to 2, before a crowd of 30,000. The double victory returned the Reds to second place and reduced the Dodger lead to a matter of points.

Behind Paul Derringer's six hit shutout pitching, the Reds won the first game with two out and nobody on in the ninth inning when Lonny Frey's line drive to right field became a trick home run. The ball struck high on the right field wall and, instead of rebounding, caromed high in the air. It dropped on the shelf formed by the top of the wall and lodged there against the screen.

Successive home runs by Pete Coscarart and Leo Durocher in the eighth inning of the second game were the only runs scored by the Dodgers all day.

CLEVELAND WINS DOUBLE HEADER FROM ATHLETICS

Cleveland, O., June 16 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians won a double header from the Athletics today, Bob Feller pitching three hit ball to win the first contest, 4 to 2, and Southpaw Al Milnar winning his ninth game as his teammates took the second game, 4 to 3. Altho he fanned 12, Feller was forced to share the spotlight with a southpaw opponent just as youthful—21 year old Porter Vaughan who was graduated by the University of Richmond only last week.

Vaughan gave up only two hits while fanning seven in seven innings. He retired for a pinch hitter at the start of the eighth with his team one run behind. Scores:

CREWS REST AS POUGHKEEPSIE REGATTA NEARS

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 16 (AP).—Probably because they have been looking at so much of it, the 18 crews entered in the Intercollegiate Rowing association regatta Tuesday shunned the Hudson river today.

The heavy work has been done, and Washington once again is the favorite at 6-5 odds. The Huskies have turned in five of the ten victories the west has gained since 1923. But the eastern eights or expected to make their best showing since Navy won in 1938. A crowd of 90,000 is expected.

California, Cornell, and Columbia all are threats to Washington.

out. After Hack and Cavarretta singled, Sullivan got himself deeper in the mire by walking Gleeson. Then Leiber singled to center, Hack and Cavarretta scoring and Gleeson sprinting to third. Neither Herman nor Galan could bring Gleeson home.

Cooney batted for Rowell to open the ninth and walked, which led to Raffensberger's removal. Page stepped in to pitch to Warstler, batting for Masi. Warstler sacrificed and Miller flied to Leiber. Sullivan grounded to Herman, but Billy's throw to first hit Sullivan on the head and bounced to the stand, giving Cooney time to score the tying run.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs drew four passes off Fette in the first two innings of the second game, but a complete absence of base hits kept the gifts from becoming runs. The no-hit status continued until two were out in the third when Gleeson doubled to left and scored on Nicholson's single. The Bees did the same to Passeau in their half of the inning. Sisti doubled to left and tied the score on Moore's single.

Nicholson walked to open the eight run sixth and other gratuities followed rapidly. Dallessandro grounded out and Cavarretta singled to center, but West let the ball roll on its way for a triple, Nicholson scoring. Cavarretta counted on Todd's fly. Mattick walked, Passeau beat out a bunt and Hack singled, Mattick scoring. Barnicle replaced Fette and filled the bases by walking Herman. Then the pitcher hit Gleeson, forcing Passeau to score. Miller made a two base hit for Nicholson by knocking a fly ball out of Ross' hands, three scoring. Coffman came in to stop the annoyance after Dallessandro had doubled Nicholson across with the eighth run.

SWIM IN SAND UNTIL JULY 1, BATHERS TOLD

Park Chief Explains Why Lake's Too Cold Now.

The temperature in Chicago climbed to 80 yesterday, and many persons who like to swim wondered, as they often do during balmy June weather, why the park district does not open its beaches until July 1.

Georges Donoghue.

You may take the word of George T. Donoghue, park district superintendent, that there's a reason for it. July 1 is the earliest day of the year that you may be fairly sure Lake Michigan is warm enough for safe swimming.

Donoghue has warned beach goers that it's all right now to loll in the sand and acquire a sunburn, but it's not all right to go in the water. The sudden shock of plunging into cold water may cause a heart attack or a cramp—with possible tragic results.

There's a Lot of Water!

Occasionally—after a warm spring—the lake might be warm enough for swimming in mid-June. But not always. The lake covers 22,400 square miles, and in some places is more than 900 feet deep. That's a lot of water to heat from its winter temperature of approximately 32 degrees.

The average temperature of the lake to date this month, according to readings taken by the city water purification department, is about 55 degrees. On June 1 it was 48 degrees. The average air temperature this month, on the basis of weather bureau figures, has been slightly above 68 degrees. Last year the average air temperature was about the same, but the average water temperature was 60 degrees.

This was partly due to the fact that May, 1939, air temperatures averaged 6.3 degrees warmer than May temperatures this year. In addition, there was less wind last May. Wind stirs up the surface water, warmed by sunlight, and mixes it with colder water near the bottom of the lake.

Wind Affects Lake Temperature.

Also, shallow water near shore is more quickly warmed than deep water. An offshore wind may blow the warm water out to the middle of the lake, and the water temperature at beaches may drop several degrees in a few hours. Wind blowing toward the shore tends to keep beach water warm.

The temperature of lake water during May usually averages slightly less than 50 degrees—far too cold for safe swimming. During June the average climbs to slightly less than 60 degrees. Not until July does the average reach between 65 and 70 degrees.

All this explains why Superintendent Donoghue's advice is: "Don't go in the water until July 1."

COL. A. W. ROBINS, RANDOLPH FIELD COMMANDER, DIES

San Antonio, Tex., June 16 [Special].—Col. Augustine W. Robins, commanding officer of the air corps training center at Randolph field, and former assistant chief of the air corps, died today of heart disease. He was 57 years old.

Col. Robins was born in Gloucester, Va. He attended school at Richmond. Upon graduation from West Point in 1907 he received a second lieutenant's commission and was assigned to the 12th cavalary.

His military career, however, was in the flying corps, where he served several details as commanding officer of flying fields. He began his aviation training at Scott field and continued during his military service to take specialized courses at the army's flying schools.

Col. Robins received a temporary appointment as major in 1917, was transferred to the air service, and became a lieutenant colonel in 1931. He was appointed assistant chief of air corps as brigadier general in 1934 and two years later was appointed colonel. He was relieved of his staff assignment in 1939 and assigned to Randolph field.

DU B. HEYWARD, 'PORGY' AUTHOR, DIES AT AGE OF 56

Tryon, N. C., June 16 (AP).—Du Bose Heyward, novelist and poet, died of a heart attack in a hospital here late today. He was 56 years old. Heyward was the author of "Porgy," "Mamba's Daughters," and other novels of Negro life. The novelist was a native of Charleston, S. C. The body will be taken there for funeral services on Tuesday.

Heyward was best known for his "Porgy," which was a successful novel, play, and opera. George Gershwin furnished the music for the opera. Heyward's widow, a playwright, collaborated with him in the dramatization of the novel.

Besides his widow, Heyward is survived by a daughter, Jenifer Du Bose Heyward, 10, and a sister, Mrs. Jennie Haskell of Summerville, S. C.

When Heyward was 2 years old, his father died in an accident. At the age of 9 the boy began to help support his family by selling newspapers. At 14 he left public school and as a young man worked on the Charleston waterfront as a cotton warehouse checker and there observed and learned to understand the Negroes about whom he wrote.

Mrs. Gertrude Derby Walker, member of a pioneer Chicago family, died yesterday in her home at 101 Park avenue, Glencoe, after a long illness. She was 81 years old. Mrs. Walker was the daughter of William N. Derby, a real estate dealer in Chicago before the civil war. She was born at Michigan avenue and 18th street. For the last 35 years she had lived in Glencoe. Mrs. Walker was the widow of Robert P. Walker, a real estate broker, who died in 1926. She leaves a sister, Mrs. Frances D. Cleeve, and a grandson. Services will be held in the home at 3 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery.

Mrs. Dorrans was born in Woodstock, McHenry county, and her family settled in what is now Evanston when she was 3 months old. During the fire of 1871 her family had one of the few wells that did not run dry, and many Chicagoans journeyed to their home for water. A son, John, and a daughter, Mrs. George Inlois of Detroit, Mich., survive.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

FEDERAL PRICE CONTROL EVILS ARE DISCLOSED

Policy Is Assailed in New Study.

Washington, D. C., June 16 (AP).—The Brookings institution, asserting that there was a trend toward government regulation of industrial prices and production, said today that "the more widely such policies are followed, the less is the net benefit" to owners and employés and "the larger is the cost to the community as a whole." The conclusions were reached in a study of the relationship of government to economic life made by the private research organization.

Citing regulation of the bituminous coal industry as an attempt to protect the domestic market of an industry "which finds the demand for its products declining," the report said:

"Short run gains to coal workers and operators appear possible, but it is improbable that there will be any long run gains. The use of substitutes is likely to increase, while higher wages may further stimulate mechanization of the industry and force diminution of direct employment.

Output Control Required.

"Consumers may pay permanently higher prices for the product. More significant, however, is the possibility that government price regulation in such a highly competitive industry cannot be made effective without government control of output."

The study also reached these conclusions:

1. That preparation for war "inevitably means greatly augmented government control of economic life."

2. That government controls over public utilities should be modified "so that utilities will find less to be gained thru efforts to obtain favorable valuation and rate actions by regulatory commissions and more to be gained by exploring possibilities of reduced rates and expanded service."

States Other Objections.

3. That the "exercise of managerial powers by the interstate commerce commission in determining railroad charges is producing a situation in which neither private management nor public authority can be held clearly accountable for the financial solvency and general operating effectiveness of the regulated enterprises."

Growth of governmental power and responsibilities, the report contended, has taken place "in such piece-meal fashion that its full import has not been grasped," and as a result "there has been a development of government functions which might not have been approved in its entirety had it been presented as a general program."

Union's National Council to Act on Gen. Motors Pact

Detroit, Mich., June 16 (AP).—The C. I. O.-United Automobile Workers' union announced today that its national General Motors council will meet in Detroit Tuesday to consider terms of an agreement reached yesterday by contract negotiators for the union and General Motors corporation. Acceptance of the pact by the council will pave the way for submission of the agreement to all locals.

Report Total Debt Is Cut in Last 10 Years

Washington, D. C., June 16 (AP).—The commerce department said today that private debts have declined faster than public debts have increased in the last decade, causing a 10 billion dollar net decrease in the total of all debts in the country between 1929 and 1939.

At the end of 1939, the department said in making public a survey by J. Wesley Sternberg, chief of the debt section, the total of all American debts was $172,000,000,000, of which the federal government owed $35,200,000,000 net.

Explains Lower Figures.

Sternberg explained that his figures differed from published debt statements, because he had made deductions to eliminate duplicating obligations and other factors. For instance, the federal figure was reduced by the amount of unobligated cash on hand.

He figured that the total net public debt of federal, state and local governmental agencies increased from $28,900,000,000 at the end of 1929 to $50,800,000,000 at the end of 1939.

Other Debts Little Larger.

State and local debts increased little over the 10-year span, he explained, because while the states borrowed a great deal for relief and public works from 1929 to 1933, they reduced their debts somewhat in the next seven years after the federal government relieved them of most of the relief problem.

Private debts, he estimated, decreased $32,000,000,000 in the decade.

SENATE URGED TO PASS LABOR LAW CHANGES

Washington, D. C., June 16 (AP).—The National Association of Manufacturers urged the senate today to act promptly on house approved amendments to the Wagner act, contending that "no measure now pending before the congress is more vital to national defense."

The amendments, which swept thru the house by a two to one vote, would abolish the positions now held by the three members of the National Labor Relations board, create a new three man board and make important changes in board procedure.

H. W. Prentis Jr., president of the association, wrote Chairman Thomas [D., Utah] of the senate labor committee that failure to consider the legislation promptly "would be to ignore the will of the people, the publicly expressed opinion of the house of representatives, the wishes of the American Federation of Labor, and the demands of national defense."

TEXAS TO SURVEY ITS OIL INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE MOVE

Austin, Tex., June 16 [Special].—The most complete survey ever made of the oil industry of Texas has been ordered by the railroad commission and when completed the report will be submitted to Secretary Harold L. Ickes for use in the national defense program. Preliminary to this survey the commission announced that Texas was prepared to step up its production of crude oil from its current average allowable of about 1,350,000 barrels daily to more than 4,000,000 barrels daily for five years, if necessary.

The commission said that Texas refineries process about one-third of the crude oil refined in the United States, and are capable of running in excess of 1,450,000 barrels daily.

NATIONAL ACME.

I have been advised to buy some National Acme as a speculation. My informant said this company should receive large orders for machine tools and for aircraft wheels and brakes. I would like to know what this company produces and what its earnings have been.—G. W.

Answer: The National Acme company manufactures in Cleveland, O., automatic screw machines, turret lathes, chucking machines, and threading tools. Its aeronautic contract division makes wheels and brakes for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, a leading supplier of airplane landing wheels. The automobile industry is the company's principal outlet for automatic machine tools.

As a result of the war, the company has had a considerable increase in machine tools and aircraft parts orders. Profits in the first 1940 quarter registered this improvement by climbing to $515,546, equal to $1.03 a capital share, from $53,836, or 11 cents a share, in the first quarter of 1939.

Despite the sharp advance in 1939 earnings over those of 1938, last year's profit was less than one-half that of 1937 and slightly more than one-fourth of the peak net income of $2,101,355, or $4.21 a share, in 1929.

Net income, earnings per share and dividends per share in recent years follow:

	Net income.	Earned per share.	Div. per share.
1935	$ 257,408	$ .51	$
1936	688,373	1.38	.75
1937	1,426,413	2.85	1.00
1938	182,914	.37	.25
1939	578,994	1.16	.50

Dividends have been paid on the capital stock in each year since 1917, except from 1921 thru 1928 and from 1932 thru 1935. The company has outstanding 500,000 shares of $1 par capital stock and funded debt of $812,000.

NEWPORT NEWS.

Is Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock listed? Who controls the company?—A. G.

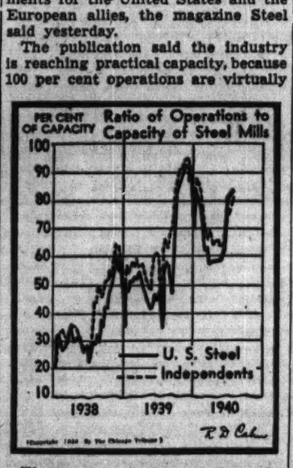
Answer: Ownership of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company was transferred last month from 12 members of the Archer M. Huntington family to the Tri-Continental corporation and other investment companies that purchased the 100,000 shares of outstanding $100 par capital stock. The shares are not listed on any exchange.

The company is a leading shipbuilder. Its plant is at Newport News, Va. At the end of May the company had a 20-year peak force of 10,450 employés with $100,000,000 contract work to be completed.

Steel Output Boosted Again by Arms Work

Steel mill operations have increased another 4½ points to a national average of 86 per cent of capacity under the stimulus of armament requirements for the United States and the European allies, the magazine Steel said yesterday.

The publication said the industry is reaching practical capacity, because 100 per cent operations are virtually impossible, due to the necessity of periodic repairs and adjustments.



The graph indicates that the United States Steel corporation is leading the independents in the current production rise.

Gains last week at various producing districts ranged up to 20 points at Detroit, where the industry is operating at 95 per cent of its theoretical peak, according to the publication.

Chicago Rate Increases.

Chicago's rate was set ahead 5½ points to 91½ per cent of capacity, and is expected to rise to 93.3 per cent this week. Bittsburgh moved up 1 point to 81 per cent. Only two districts failed to advance, Cleveland and New England retaining levels of the preceding week.

"Steel makers have been pushing deliveries as rapidly as possible to clear books for armament requirements and to avoid congestion," Steel said. "Signs of speeding up of defense preparations appear in various directions."

Rising ore prices have caused advances of $20 a ton in ferromanganese.

Mediterranean Exports End.

Exports to Mediterranean ports have been halted. The largest shipment held up was one of 250,000 tons of steel scrap for Italy.

Railroads last week placed the largest orders for freight cars since October, their orders totaling 3,260.

The magazine's steel scrap price index rose 66 cents to $19.33 a ton, the highest since last November.

The Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel, Inc., announced May domestic consumption of iron and steel scrap increased 22 per cent to 3,353,000 gross tons, the largest since January.

FORD READY FOR MASS PRODUCTION OF BOTH AIRCRAFT AND ENGINES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—The vast Ford plants at Detroit and Dearborn already have been rehabilitated for the mass production of planes and engines, Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor company, disclosed today at the New York World's Fair.

Attending Ford day ceremonies at the company's exhibit, where the 28,000,000th Ford was put on display, Ford talked reluctantly about his firm's war order plans.

One reporter asked whether the plants had been rehabilitated to make tanks.

"O, no," he replied. "We plan to make no tanks. They have been prepared rather to produce planes and engines."

Then he hastened to add that "nothing is definite." The company has had "only preliminary discussions" with government officials, he said, altho experiments are under way looking to the manufacture of Rolls Royce plane engines.

LARGE INCREASE IN CONSUMPTION OF ORE EXPECTED

Cleveland, O., June 16 [Special].—Great Lakes vessel men today predicted that ore consumption in the third quarter would aggregate approximately 16,300,000 tons, or an average of about 5,435,000 tons a month. This would be a large increase, as ore consumption has not passed the 5,000,000 ton mark since late last fall.

All available freighters are transporting ore and, with the outlook in the steel industry favorable, numerous vessel operators are predicting a 1940 ore movement of more than 50,000,000 tons. A few optimistic owners have estimated shipments as high as 60,000,000 tons, provided the steel boom doesn't collapse.

Shipments of bituminous coal continue at a record breaking pace, but a decline is expected late this month or early in July.

GRAINS RECOVER MOST OF WEEK'S PRICE LOSSES

End of Minimums Aids Market.

After a troublesome week principal grain futures closed not much lower than a week earlier. In view of several unfavorable developments this price action was regarded by traders as a sign of the healthful condition of the market.

Problems besetting the grain trade during the last week included: [1] removing of the established price minimums; [2] continued reports of allied reverses and the temporary loss of more markets; [3] Italy's declaration of war, and [4] optimistic crop reports from the grain belt and favorable weather reports.

About the only bullish factors that appeared in the market during the period were news of government purchases of flour and further consideration of spending of huge sums for relief, Red Cross work, and price stability.

Rally Late in Week.

Most grains opened strong last week. About noon Monday word was received that Italy had declared war on the allies and there were reports of further German victories. The market dropped momentarily, but then reacted and closed higher.

The following day the directors of the Board of Trade voted to remove the minimum prices, effective Friday, asserting that the market was able to take care of itself. Prices gradually weakened until on Thursday—eve of the removal of the price "floors"—all of the grains except July corn sank to the minimums. Traders were pessimistic.

Friday the market responded to the lifting of price restrictions with a substantial gain, outside interest was awakened and the volume of trading broadened.

NAZIS' ECONOMIC POSITION STRONG, RESEARCHER SAYS

Washington, D. C., June 16 (AP).—The Foreign Policy association estimated today that Germany, altho compelled to dig into its reserve stocks of raw materials, has not yet been weakened seriously in the economic field.

"The conquest of Denmark, Norway, the Low Countries, and Luxemburg has brought temporary economic relief," John C. De Wilde said in a study prepared for the association, a private research organization.

While failure of the present blitzkrieg would greatly minimize the chances of a German victory, he added, "it would not necessarily mean a quick defeat because the reich has girded itself for a long conflict."

The study attributed the military successes of Germany "in large part to the effective way in which the country's entire economy has been geared to the war machine."

Day by Day on the Farm by Bob Becker

Orphan Stays On.

June 16, 1940.

JILL, the orphan robin which was rescued by several of the workers on the Du Page county farm and hand-fed for several weeks, still refuses to leave its friends and shift for itself. This fledgling was orphaned when its mother was injured. Then the farm women took it in, gave it a nice box in which to roost, and dug worms for it to eat. Now the youngster is almost fully feathered and can fly as well as any bird, but still it depends upon the women to provide it with free room and board.

When it's hungry [about six times a day] it flies to the window ledge and calls for a fresh angleworm. If the women whistle to it, the bird comes from the trees in the lawn to accept its handout. It gets flying exercise in the trees on the lawn of a farm home and doesn't go far away. When the young orphan gets ready to retire for the night it comes back to the window and walks into its roosting box.

Useful Electric Fence.

The electrically charged wire fence from the sheep barn to one of the ponds now is well known to all the animals. This handy type of fencing, which carries just enough electricity to give an animal a slight, harmless shock, is proving to be very useful.

We noticed this week that the electric fencing wire rests on an old rail fence which divides a pasture and a grain field. The sheep and cattle are on one side in the grazing area, and it was obvious that they have no inclination to crowd this picturesque old barrier with its charged wire.

Birds Avoid Wire.

When we walked along this fence on our way to the ponds we noticed that the birds which make their headquarters in the fields also avoid the electric wire. Each spring a flock of kingbirds uses this old rail fence as the jumping-off place for their raids on insects. Their habit is to sit on the top rail until they spot a bee or other flying insect, then dart out to catch their meal on the wing. The electric fence evidently forced them to change their headquarters this spring. The kingbirds are here [we saw several on the farm this week], but not one is using the rail fence.

Some of the typical midsummer flowers opened their blossoms in the farm woods and fields last week despite the fact that the weather man has been dispensing cool weather more typical of early spring than the middle of June. Among the wild flowers which catch the eye right now are the wild roses, the oxeye daisies, and the purple spiderwort, or Job's tears. It's evident that the amount of moisture in the soil is going to give these species a boom year. The spiderwort plants look now as if they might grow into miniature shrubs, so sturdy and tall are their stems.
